Additional Information About Training Opportunities

The Consortium intends to apply for APA accreditation for its postdoctoral residency program within a few years.

Program Description

The Arizona Psychology Training Consortium is a non-profit subsidiary corporation of the Arizona Psychological Association. The Consortium was developed to create internships and postdoctoral residencies. Community mental health, alternative school, neuropsychology, pediatric neuropsychology, health psychology, managed care, rural psychology, and private practice sites are available. There are no clinical rotations between the training sites. All of the residencies provide advanced training in psychotherapy, cultural diversity, and independent practice. Residents participate in two-day didactic training events each month. There is a considerable amount of travel to the statewide training events. Training opportunities are provided by academicians and practitioners from several Arizona universities, community agencies, and practices. In addition, members of the Arizona Psychological Association serve as mentors to residents to enhance their career development and networking opportunities. There is a selection preference for applicants from Arizona universities and internship programs, but applicants from any regionally accredited Clinical, Counseling, and School Psychology programs are encouraged to apply. Applicants must send at least two complete application packets. One complete application packet goes to the Consortium. Also send one complete application packet to each individual training site of interest. Please review the application procedures described on the Arizona Psychological Association website at www.azpa.org. During the application process, frequently check the website for new Consortium training opportunities.

Program Description

The Counseling & Consultation (C&C) postdoctoral residency is a 2000 hour, 12 month advanced training program designed to prepare the resident for a staff psychologist position in a university counseling center. It meets the postdoctoral supervised experience requirements for licensure in Arizona. C&C has a multidisciplinary staff, including psychologists, counselors, social workers, and psychiatrists. Its mission is to serve a diverse student population, and models and promotes the valuing of human differences on individual, organization, and community levels as well as the facilitation of human potential. The postdoctoral resident is encouraged to tailor the program to specific interest areas. Depending upon agency resources, possible interest areas include: 1) work with a particular clinical issue such as substance abuse or eating disorders; 2) work with a diversity focus (for example, working with an ethnically diverse clientele or working with diversity of sexual orientation); 3) outreach and consultation; 4) agency administration; 5) training program administration. At the beginning of the program, the resident meets with the Training Director to develop a training contract reflecting individual interests. The program uses a developmental-practitioner training model and training activities are focused on developing existing skills through a range of professional activities, training, and feedback. Residents provide individual and group therapy, outreach, consultation, crisis intervention (both daytime and after-hours), and supervise masters or doctoral level advanced practicum students. Residents participate in agency staff meetings, staff development programs, and agency committees and teams.

Program Description
Residents will be responsible for providing: (a) individual, couples, and group therapy; (b) assessment and referral services; (c) crisis intervention and on-call services; (d) outreach programming; and (e) psychological consultation to the campus community. Residents may also have involvement in training and supervision of practicum students through Humboldt State University's Master's level Counseling program. Residents will receive both individual and group supervision commensurate with the requirements for licensure. Training Director has a feminist psychodynamic theoretical orientation. Associate Director is an integrationist. Although the training is in brief therapy, each resident may carry one longer term client.

CAPS is housed in the Health Center building on campus. Each resident will have a private office, with computer and internet access, and a centralized video system for supervision. The counseling facility includes a group room, a professional library, and a staff kitchen. CAPS currently consists of four professional therapists working as a team. Peer consultation is emphasized and constantly utilized in a supportive and collegial atmosphere. The staff is especially interested in residents who will support this type of work environment. Residents will engage in both formal and informal supervisory contact with all professional staff. In addition to supervision, residents will participate in our weekly case conference and training seminar. Humboldt State University is located on the northern California redwood coast, in the community of Arcata (pop. 13,000). The hillside campus overlooks Humboldt Bay and the Pacific Ocean, amidst the surrounding Redwood forest. As one of the smaller campuses of the California State University system, with about 7,500 students, HSU is known for its open and friendly campus environment.

Program Description
Program provides advanced training opportunities in the core service areas provided by CAPS including: Intake Assessment, Crisis Intervention, Brief Psychotherapy, Multicultural Counseling, Career Counseling, Consultation to Campus Units and Departments, Program Development and Outreach. The program stresses Generalist Training, with the goal of preparing the fellow for a staff position in a university counseling center. At the same time, this program offers specialized training in several emphasis areas - Eating Disorders, Sport Psychology, Multi-Cultural Immersion, Mind-Body Wellness and a Clinical Practice area depending upon fellow's interests and experience level, as well as the current needs of the Center. The educational philosophy and training model is to provide training grounded in the scientific principles of our profession that emphasis the area of applied practice. The overarching objective is to train ethical, competent psychologists who are capable of functioning independently and will contribute both to the welfare of society and to the profession. The training staff realizes that the most important learning occurs through providing service under the direct supervision and mentorship of a senior staff professional. Such "learning by doing" is guided, enriched and deepened through the postdoctoral seminar and clinical rotations, consultations, and in-service staff development activities. The fellowship program is defined by a commitment to the following goals: Goal #1: Commitment to mentoring and the scientist-practitioner model; Goal #2: Commitment to a broad range of skill development; Goal #3: Commitment to training in providing services to a diverse clientele; Goal #4: Commitment to facilitating personal growth and professional identity; Goal #5: Commitment to flexibility in developing each fellow's training program. Program Description

The Sullivan Center for Children is an intensive outpatient treatment center that specializes in providing psychological services to children, adolescents and their families. The Sullivan Center is a Psychological Corporation currently employing 14 clinicians. Four of those clinicians are Ph.D. Psychologists, two are a Psy.D. We also have three LMFT's one LCSW and one Board Certified Child Psychiatrist. The populations we treat vary greatly in terms of age, type of pathology, socio-economic status, and cultural backgrounds. The Center is dedicated to the treatment of children, adolescents and their families. We provide individual treatment for the children, individual therapy for the parents, if appropriate, educational/supportive therapy for the parents around the child’s needs, couples therapy if the problems lie in the parents and not in the child, family therapy if the pathology is best treated from a family systems perspective, group therapy for children, and supportive and educational groups for parents. If a child and their family are involved with more than one therapist, then a team approach is used to coordinating treatments. Age of people actually treated at the Center run from infancy through older adulthood, although adults treated at the Center usually arrived at our services through a child or adolescent problem. We are a for-profit corporation, and provide fee-for-service basis, we also have contracts with the Fresno Unified School District and Central Valley Regional Center that allow us to provide services to children who have a lower socio-economic status. We deal with problems of childhood that range from mildly to severely disturbed.

Program Description:
This Postdoctoral Fellowship is designed for psychologists who wish to develop a specialty in working with children, adolescents and their parents/caregivers from a psychoanalytic/pyschoanalytic developmental perspective. The two-year format creates the opportunity for experience with comprehensive diagnostic evaluations as well as in-depth psychotherapy. The small class size is conducive to intimate dialogs and discussions with the teaching faculty. The fellowship structure affords the fellows the opportunity to integrate theory and practice, an essential skill for beginning professionals. While maintaining its long-standing tradition of psychoanalytic developmental training, the program has incorporated into its curriculum the most recent advances in neurobiology as they pertain to the workings of the mind. In Practice, The Center utilizes a multidisciplinary team approach to arrive at scientifically-informed, developmentally-based and dynamic formulations and intervention strategies to help children, adolescents and their caregivers with their respective challenges. The fellowship program functions within the overall structure of the Center which, as an outpatient mental health clinic, has been serving a racially, ethnically and socioeconomically diverse population for over fifty years. Now, a division of Vista Del Mar Child and Family Services, the Center is located on the 17 acres campus of the parent agency in the heart of West Los Angeles. This fellowship is available on a part-time (20-25 hours/week) or full-time (35-40 hours/week) basis. Fellows can begin any time mid-July to mid-September. Their weekly schedule will consist of 8-12 hours in diagnostic and therapeutic work with children, adolescents and their caregivers, 2-3 hours in individual supervision and 10-12 hours in didactic seminars and group supervisions. Full-time fellows will spend the balance of their time on psychological and psychoeducational testing.
The Postdoctoral Fellowship Program in Neuropsychology at the UCLA Semel Institute for Neuroscience and Human Behavior aims to prepare clinician-scientists for careers in academic research and clinical applications within the specialty area of neuropsychology. The program offers training in a series of six tracks with clinician/educator and academic/research emphases, including: 1) General Track - 1 opening; 2) Child Track - 1 opening; 3) Geropsych Track - 1 opening; 4) Neurology of Aging - 1 opening; 5) HIV/AIDS Research Track - 2 openings. All Fellows, regardless of track, receive broad training and experience in both research and practice. All residents share an extensive curriculum of didactic and experiential offerings, and training programs are individually tailored to achieve specific goals considering the Resident’s prior competencies and experiences.
The University of Southern California, Division of Student Affairs, offers two postdoctoral fellowships in College Mental Health, each with a separate track: one with a specialization in Disability Services, and the other track with a specialization in Sports Psychology (applicants will need to specify which fellowship track they are applying to). The central training goal for both fellowships is that the postdoctoral fellows complete their training with advanced knowledge, confidence, and competence in the following areas of clinical practice: short-term therapy, group counseling, awareness and appreciation of human diversity, professional ethics and decision making, crisis intervention, outreach/consultation, and clinical supervision. The following is a description of the subspecialty for each fellowship: TRACK #1: College Mental Health and Disability Services: An 12-month fellowship focusing on clinical services to students with disabilities who register with the Disability Services and Programs office as well as the general student population that seek services with USC Student Counseling Services. Further information on TRACK #1, go to website: http://www.usc.edu/student-affairs/student-counseling-services.html. TRACK #2: College Mental Health and Sports Psychology: A 12-month fellowship which has an emphasis with clinical services to student athletes population that seek services with USC Student Counseling Center as well as outreach and consultation to student athletes within the USC Athletic Department. Further information on TRACK #2, go to website: http://www.usc.edu/student-affairs/health_center/cs.postdoctoral.html.

Program Description
The University of Southern California University Center for Excellence in Developmental Disabilities (USC UCEDD) at Childrens Hospital Los Angeles (CHLA) offers an advanced two-year postdoctoral training program in Clinical Child Psychology. The program offers unique training experiences in clearly defined emphasis areas. Individuals are recruited specifically for each emphasis area and are offered training opportunities in a variety of departments and clinical services. The emphasis practice areas include Pediatric Psychology, Early Childhood Mental Health, Trauma Psychology, Child and Family Therapy, and Adolescent Psychology. The postdoctoral training program at CHLA is based on an integrated community mental health and health psychology scientist-practitioner model. It is designed to train psychologists to assume leadership roles as experts in clinical psychology in pediatric community and medical settings. Depending on the emphasis area chosen, fellows may be gaining professional experiences in outpatient mental health clinics, community clinics, schools, and/or pediatric hospital units. Through intensive supervision, didactic lectures and seminars, research and program development activities, and ample direct patient contact and consultation opportunities, fellows enhance and develop advanced clinical skills in their emphasis area. The program will only accept graduates of APA accredited programs who will have completed APA accredited internships and all the requirements for graduation by September 1, 2007.

Program Description

The USC Institute of Psychiatry, Law, and Behavioral Science is an integrated part of the USC Department of Psychiatry and has been in existence since 1963. It offers a full-time one year Fellowship and an option for a second year. Psychology Fellows are offered the same training and education as Psychiatry Fellows. All Fellows serve under supervision as consultants and as expert witnesses for the State and Federal Criminal Court, Family Law Court, Mental Health Court, Juvenile Court, and County and Federal Probation as well as the State Parole Board. Each Fellow is assigned two cases per week involving psychological-legal issues for the courts and various administrative hearings. The Fellows have at least seven USC Fellowship-trained faculty supervisors at any given time. The Fellows also conduct treatment of mentally disordered offenders. Courses and seminars are approximately 13-15 hours per week. The lecturers are forensic psychologists and psychiatrists, judges, attorneys and professionals in other forensic related disciplines. Each Fellow teaches and supervises USC psychiatric residents in the area of psychiatry and the law. Moreover, there are clinical case conferences where each Fellow presents a forensic case demonstrating his/her knowledge and application of clinical material to the legal issues. Additionally, each fellow will serve as a consultant to the largest jail in the United States, working with both male and female arrestees. Finally, each fellow will have an opportunity to conduct a psychological autopsy for the Los Angeles County Department of Coroner. Program Description

The Wright Institute Los Angeles Postgraduate Center’s full-time and half-time postdoctoral training program is designed to develop and refine competence in the conduct of long-term, intensive psychotherapy and brief psychotherapy. The theoretical orientation of most of our faculty is contemporary psychodynamic/psychoanalytic. The field of psychoanalytic psychotherapy has undergone a substantial evolution in recent years. The program precepts the core of theory and technique that has endured through this evolution as well as relatively recent developments which have advanced theory and enlarged the range of application and effectiveness of psychoanalytic psychotherapy. The program consists of the conduct of psychotherapy with an adult caseload presenting with a broad range of diagnoses and issues, individual and group supervision, an extensive series of seminars on theory and technique, and case conferences. Focused training in eating disorders, in trauma and crisis intervention and in parenting skills development is available to interested postdoctoral fellows. Teaching and supervision are conducted by a small core faculty and a large group of mental health professionals on our Teaching and Supervisory Faculty. The training staff includes 2 full-time and 4 part-time psychologists and 40 mental health professionals in private practice who have appointments to WILA’s Teaching and Supervisory faculty. All faculty are licensed and experienced and have specialty training in psychoanalytically oriented psychotherapy and psychoanalysis. Participation in the postdoctoral training program requires a Ph.D. or Psy.D. in Clinical or Counseling Psychology.

Program Description

The South Bay Consortium is a joint program supported by the Santa Clara and San Jose/Santa Teresa Medical Centers. The Consortium began in 2006 as part of a restructuring of the larger Northern California Regional postdoctoral training programs. The goal was to provide an integrated and comprehensive training program while retaining local support. The South Bay Consortium is a comprehensive program that is well integrated into the Kaiser Permanente health care system. A total of 12 Clinical Psychology Residents are placed in Department of Child or Adult Psychiatry or our Autistic Spectrum Disorder Clinic. Their required clinic time is 40 hours per week during a 12-month period. One-half of the residents’ time is spent providing direct services to clients through individual, group, family, or couples therapy and conducting psychological assessments. In addition to the required two hours of individual supervision weekly by a licensed psychologist, residents also participate in two hours of group supervision, case conferences, team meetings, and weekly seminars. Residents are also encouraged to attend the monthly grand rounds for the general staff. In addition to weekly seminars and individual and group supervision, residents are expected to attend a monthly half-day seminar, which is also open to supervising psychologists for continuing education credits. The first seminar focuses on Ethics and the Law. This ensures all postdoctoral residents have a sound working knowledge of California’s professional code of conduct. The focus of the Postdoctoral Fellowship training program at Children’s Hospital of Orange County (CHOC) is to provide advanced in-depth training in child/pediatric psychology and prepare individuals for careers in medical settings. The CHOC Fellowship offers specialized training in child clinical psychology applied in a general pediatric tertiary care setting. Postdoctoral Fellows are supervised by Psychology faculty who have expertise in child clinical psychology, as well as specialized interests in neuropsychology, pain management, disruptive behavior disorders, infant development, and sports psychology. The Program provides experience with consultation/liaison to sub-specialty pediatric units, neuropsychological assessment, and work in our outpatient Pediatric Psychology and ADHD Clinics. One position is with our Early Intervention with Attention and Learning Disorders Program, which is jointly sponsored by the Department of Pediatrics, University of California, Irvine. The training program is housed within the Department of Pediatric Psychology which provides comprehensive psychological services throughout the Children’s Hospital. Postdoctoral Fellows share some training experiences and seminars with interns in an APA accredited psychology internship as well as medical residents. Further, fellows have the opportunity to evaluate/consult/treat a wide variety of families from multicultural backgrounds. Fellows participate in research activities and complete a research project during their fellowship.

Program Description

Children’s Health Council (CHC) is a private, non-profit, multidisciplinary agency offering outpatient mental health and special education services to children with emotional, behavioral, and/or developmental problems. The patient population served by CHC ranges in age from infancy to early adulthood and includes the full span of socioeconomic levels, cultural groups, and range of clinical problems. The CHC currently offers 2 one-year postdoctoral fellowships in child clinical psychology. Postdoctoral Fellows receive intensive training in psychodiagnostic assessment and treatment of children and families in a multidisciplinary setting and are encouraged to select an area of specialization. Opportunities for focusing on training in Pediatric Neuropsychology or Young Child Assessment/Treatment are available. Additional opportunities for training in Pervasive Developmental Disorders or Medically Fragile Children are typically available. The postdoctoral fellowship follows the training guidelines of the APA as detailed by APPIC as well as Section 1 of Division 12 (Child Clinical Psychology). Each fellow spends approximately 60% of the time per week in direct clinical service (i.e., assessment, psychotherapy, consultation) and 40% of the time in supervision, seminars, and various non-patient clinical meetings (e.g., case conferences, clinical rounds). Supervision and didactics are provided primarily by psychologists at Children’s Health Council and clinical faculty members of Stanford University Medical School. Applicants from APA approved internship programs are preferred.
The Rehabilitation Psychology track provides training in areas of competence required in this area. The Psychosocial Rehabilitation track provides training in a recovery/rehabilitation approach to work with individuals and families. The Palliative Care/Hospice track involves training in the emerging competencies and proficiencies that define clinical psychology, and offers both breadth and depth to develop both advanced general clinical skills and specific skills within the following areas of emphasis: Behavioral Medicine, Clinical Geropsychology, Rehabilitation, Palliative Care, Psychosocial Rehabilitation, and Rehabilitation Psychology. The core program also emphasizes professional development and the development of skills for supervision. Extensive individual and group supervision are available in all settings. The Behavioral Medicine track provides training in all areas of competence defined as essential for expertise in Behavioral Medicine. The Clinical Geropsychology Postdoctoral Fellowship involves training in all areas of Geropsychology Competency as described in the APA Proficiency. The Palliative Care/Hospice track involves training in the emerging competencies for Psychologists working in these areas. "The Psychosocial Rehabilitation track provides training in a recovery/rehabilitation approach to work with patients with serious mental illness. The Rehabilitation Psychology track provides training in areas of competence required in this area.

Program Description

PLEASE CONTACT PROGRAM FOR UPDATED INFORMATION This fellowship offers three tracks: Forensic Psychology (2 positions), Advanced Clinical Psychology (2 positions), and Neuropsychology (2-4 positions). Application specific to the track desired. The forensic program provides training in the specialized practice of forensic psychology, including case and statutory law, use of specialized assessment instruments, forensic reports, and expert testimony. Fellows perform forensic evaluations and consultations, including trial competency, criminal responsibility, sex offender evaluations, mentally disordered offender evaluations, assessments of psychopathy and general risk and sex offender risk assessment. The advanced clinical program is designed for the fellow who has limited forensic experience to develop advanced skills in therapy and assessment while working in a forensic setting. The clinical fellows conduct intensive long-term individual psychotherapy and psychological assessments focused on treatment needs, diagnosis, and readiness for discharge. The neuropsychology fellowship provides advanced training in the specialized practice of neuropsychology while working in a forensic setting. We are in the process of expanding this track to a two-year post-doc by the 2008-09 year. The program addresses core knowledge areas of neuropsychology, functional neuropsychology, neuropsychological assessment, and report writing. Fellows lead cognitive remediation groups, perform hospital-wide neuropsychological evaluations, and serve as consultants to treatment teams. We anticipate partnering with local medical hospitals and rehabilitation centers so we can offer assessment opportunities of non-psychiatric individuals.

Additional Information About Training Opportunities

For additional information, please contact individual site coordinators in the East Bay Consortium (Antioch, Pleasant Hill, Pleasanton, or Walnut Creek). This information is listed under the Post Doctoral Residency section of the website at: http://residency.kp.org/ncal/psych/psychology.htm

Program Description

The East Bay Consortium consists of at least two fellowships at each of four site locations in the Bay Area: Antioch, Martinez/Pleasant Hill, Pleasanton, and Walnut Creek. Residents are generalists, but may have a primary affiliation to the Adult, Child & Family, or Chemical Dependency teams depending on the site. Our training philosophy is to foster clinical competence and professional identity through the mastery of basic and specialized skills. Training in empirically validated techniques gives residents a menu of interventions, while supervision keeps a focus on the particulars of each therapist/client pairing. There is a clear emphasis on the role of the psychologist in a multi-cultural community, an outpatient setting and integrated with the medical center in providing quality health care to its members. The residency consists of three components: 1. Regular exposure, through active participation, to all facets of outpatient services. 2. Professional guidance through sessions of formal supervision, staff meetings and informal contacts with staff members. 3. Regular weekly and monthly training seminars. One half of the residents time is spent providing direct services to Kaiser members through individual, group, & family therapy. Residents complete 2 psychological test batteries over the course of the training year. SERVICES The Departments of Psychiatry at each site provide individual, group, family, child and adolescent therapy, post-hospital stabilization programs for teens and adults, and chemical dependency services for adults, as well as evidence based treatment groups for common disorders. Some specialized services are sub regionalized at Walnut Creek, including an eating disorders program and a teen chemical dependency program. STAFF ORIENTATION: Members of the staff represent a variety of theoretical orientations.

Program Description

The central San Francisco bay region encompasses the cultural and geographic heart of the Bay Area. The training sites of the Central Bay Training Consortium are located in the cities of Oakland, Redwood City, Richmond, San Francisco, and South San Francisco. The Departments of Psychiatry at each site provides psychotherapy, psychological testing, and psycho-educational programs. Each department includes an Intensive Outpatient Program (IOP) that provides services to recently hospitalized individuals. Certain sites in the Central Bay Training Consortium include the Chemical Dependency Recovery Program (CDRP) which offers intensive chemical dependency services. Certain departments offer Neuropsychological assessment services. Each site runs many different groups such as Dialectic Behavioral Therapy (DBT). Residents are placed in Departments of Psychiatry and are required to complete 40 hours per week over a 12-month period. In addition to the required two hours of individual supervision weekly by a psychologist, the resident also participates in two or more hours of group supervision, case conference, and/or team meetings and a weekly seminar. Residents from each of the four sites attend weekly seminars at one site. Residents attend a monthly half-day Kaiser Permanente Northern California Post-Doctoral regional seminar. These seminars provide an opportunity to develop professional relationships with a large community of psychologists that will help orient the post-doctoral fellow to his or her career as a professional psychologist. We have made a commitment to evidenced-based treatments. Departments throughout the region have sent specialists to develop Best Practice guidelines based on the most current research for major psychological disorders. The Best Practices literature is made available to all residents and is considered part of overall curriculum of the residency program. Visit our website to see our Best Practices Manuals.

Program Description
Our training program is designed for Clinical Psychology with three different areas of emphasis. One Fellow is selected for Child/Adolescent Psychology training, another for Geropsychology training, and a third for Cognitive-Behavioral training. The Child/Adolescent fellow provides clinical service to an inpatient population, the Geropsychology Fellow works with both an inpatient and partial hospitalization population, and the Cognitive-Behavioral Fellow is assigned to an Intensive Treatment Outpatient Program. Fellows supervise interns in our APA accredited internship program. Our orientation is largely CBT. Training occurs in the hospital and in the local professional community.

Program Description

The North Bay Consortium consists of three site locations in the Bay Area: Santa Rosa, San Rafael and Vallejo. In Santa Rosa there are 4 positions split between the adult and child teams. In San Rafael, there are 4 positions split between the child and adult teams and 2 positions in chemical dependency services. In Vallejo, there are 3 positions on the adult team. Our training philosophy is to foster clinical competence and professional identity through the mastery of basic and specialized skills. For example, depending on which site they chose, residents are involved in DBT group programs, teen and child programs, eating disorder group programs and behavioral medicine. There is a clear emphasis on the role of the psychologist in a multi-cultural community, an outpatient setting and integrated with the medical center in providing quality health care to its members. The residency consists of three components: 1. Regular exposure, through active participation, to all facets of outpatient services. 2. Professional guidance through sessions of formal supervision, staff meetings and informal contacts with staff members. 3. Regular weekly and monthly training seminars. One half of the resident’s time is spent providing direct services to Kaiser members through individual, group, and family therapy. Residents complete 2 psychological test batteries over the course of the training year. SERVICES: The Department of Psychiatry provides individual, group, family, child and adolescent therapy. Chemical dependency services include outpatient adult programs, as well as adolescent and family programs. Each psychiatry department offers evidenced-based treatment for depression, anxiety, child/adolescent-family problems, eating disorders, and psychiatric emergencies. The focus is on brief treatment using CBT, DBT, and Interpersonal Therapy. STAFF ORIENTATION: Members of the staff represent a variety of theoretical orientations.

Program Description

The Help Group's post-doctoral Fellowship concentrating in Autism Spectrum Disorders provides fellows an opportunity to obtain advanced clinical training and experience in intervention (individual, family, and group therapy) and assessment working with children and adolescents on the autism spectrum, and in developing skills in supervision, public speaking, and program development, evaluation, and management in areas related to working specifically with an autistic population. The Help Group is one of the largest providers of school-based and outpatient services for children on the autistic spectrum in the U.S., treating children and adolescents from pre-school through young adulthood. The year begins with the fellow doing a self-assessment of their strengths and areas in need of further training and experience. This self-assessment aids in the development of the individualized learning plan, which informs the training agreement for the year. The Help Group’s post-doctoral fellowship program strives to enhance and refine the fellow’s knowledge and experience with an autistic population and to have fellows meet by the end of the year the skills and competencies needed to be considered ready for independent practice in the field of professional psychology with specialized skills and knowledge in working with autism spectrum disorders in a community mental health center. The fellows’ post-doctoral year will provide extensive experiences and exposure to the multifaceted roles psychologists take on in community mental health, with a focus on autism. They will be exposed to clients with ASD in therapy and testing, they will work with multidisciplinary teams who are working with children and adolescents with ASD, and they will supervise clinical and/or school staff. The post-doctoral fellow will be given more autonomy and independence as the year proceeds while always having access to supervisors and training opportunities.

Program Description

The Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences at Stanford University School of Medicine offers: 1) clinic-funded fellowships for those planning careers in clinical service; and 2) NIMH-funded research fellowships for those preparing for academic careers. Clinical fellowships are currently available in the Behavioral Psychiatry Clinic, which specializes in treatment of anxiety, eating disorders, depression, chronic pain, insomnia, personality disorders, and couple and family problems; and the Child Psychiatry Clinic, which provides evaluation, assessment and treatment of children and adolescents. Clinical fellows spend approximately 50% time engaged in direct clinical activity, with the balance in supervision, case conferences, seminars, and research activity. Clinical fellowship appointments are full-time, for one year. However, fellows may apply for a second year of training at the midpoint of the academic year. NIMH-funded research fellowships are for two years. Research opportunities for NIMH fellows are in the following areas: depression, anxiety, eating disorders, sleep disorders, and developmental psychopathology. NIMH fellows spend at least 80% of their time in research-related activities, generally working with one primary faculty mentor. Our fellowships are open to PhDs and PsyDs from APA-accredited clinical or counseling psychology programs, who have completed APA-accredited internships. Our program is also open to candidates who have completed programs accredited by the Canadian Psychological Association. NIMH research fellowships are also open to MDs.

Program Description

The Kaiser Permanente South East Bay Consortium is a comprehensive program that is well-integrated into the health care system. Residents placed in the Departments of Psychiatry and Chemical Dependency are required to complete 40 hours per week over a 12-month period. One half of the resident’s time is spent providing direct services to clientele through individual, group, family, or couple therapy and conducting psychological assessments. Residents also participate in research, program evaluation, supervision and community projects. In addition to the required two hours of individual supervision weekly by a licensed psychologist, residents also participate in at least two additional hours of individual and/or group supervision, case conferences, team meetings, and weekly seminars. In addition to a weekly seminar, individual and group supervision at their training sites, residents are expected to attend a monthly half-day regional seminar. The first regional seminar focuses on Ethics and the Law. This ensures all postdoctoral residents have a sound working knowledge of California’s professional code of conduct. The four hour monthly seminar is offered on a regional basis. This seminar takes place the second Tuesday of every month (for a total of 11 regional seminars). Examples of seminars that have been presented in the past include: Ethics, Neuropsychology, Diversity, Dialectical Behavioral Therapy and a variety of other topics. Residents for each of the three sites attend weekly seminars together with the exception of days where holiday schedules may conflict. Psychologists or psychiatrists with particular advanced knowledge and expertise, address the postdoctoral residents on such topics as: eating disorders in adolescents, anxiety and OCD treatment, medications for patients with a history of trauma and abuse, spirituality, assessment of dementia, and dual diagnosis.

Training Opportunities

Program Description

The fellowship program subscribes to the guidelines for the specialty of Clinical Health Psychology advanced by the American Psychological Association and espouses a strong scientist-practitioner model. Training emphasizes the following 4 core competencies: (1) research/scholarship; (2) advanced clinical practice; (3) interprofessional training; and, (4) program development/policy guideline implementation. With the assistance of the training committee, fellows develop an individualized training plan to meet these 4 core competencies. While fellows are invited and encouraged to participate in existing projects (i.e., current research, teaching, clinical, or program development activities), training opportunities in other areas of behavioral medicine of particular interest to a fellow are also supported. A brief summary of the 4 core competences is below:

- Research/Scholarship
  - Involves a broad range of study designs, including primary and secondary data sources.
  - Fellows are expected to conduct original research for publication and presentation in academic conferences and national meetings.

- Advanced Clinical Practice
  - Involves the delivery of evidenced-based care in a variety of settings, including inpatient, outpatient, and community-based clinics.

- Interprofessional Training
  - Opportunities to teach, mentor, and supervise other trainees (predoctoral interns, practica students, and graduate research assistants) as well as to coordinate a yearlong didactic seminar series for all psychology trainees are provided.

- Program Development/Policy Guideline Implementation
  - Most opportunities include the development of innovative, integrative, and multidisciplinary models of care and involve-ment in hospital-, regional- or nation-wide program development projects.

Program Description

The primary purpose of the Psychology Postdoctoral Training Program at RWSIR is to prepare fellows to function autonomously as licensed psychologists in a medical, rehabilitation, or vocational setting. While there is a neuropsychological component to the postdoc, it is designed as a postdoc in rehabilitation psychology. The experiences and training available are primarily clinical. The primary goal of the program is to provide more intensive and advanced training in the practice of psychology with medical and vocational rehabilitation patients in order that fellows will develop a professional identity that is appropriate for a psychologist working within a multidisciplinary treatment team environment. We encourage a collegial relationship between psychology staff and fellows, where the primary difference between the two is breadth and depth of knowledge and experience. Fellows are encouraged to assume clinical responsibilities at the level that their skills and experience allows. Psychologists at the Roosevelt Institute are committed to training and mentoring and are responsible for providing adequate supervision and to be accessible mentors for postdoctoral fellows. Fellows are provided with opportunities to serve both in the Medical Rehabilitation Unit (MRU) and the Vocational Rehabilitation Unit (VRU). They are required to work in each of the following three areas: 1) Neurological Rehabilitation Program, 2) Orthopedic Rehabilitation Program, and 3) Vocational Rehabilitation Unit. The fellow will provide psychotherapy and psychological assessment. The fellow will maintain a long-term therapy caseload and provide psychological assessment throughout the year in the VRU. In the MRU, the fellow will spend half the year in the Neurological Rehabilitation Program and half the year in the Orthopedic Rehabilitation Program. See http://www.rooseveltrehab.org/psychologypostdoc.asp for a more detailed description.

Program Description

This APA-accredited Post-Doctoral Fellowship in Clinical Psychology is designed to provide education, supervised clinical experiences, research, and program development opportunities directly related to post-traumatic stress, with a focus on U.S. Veterans of war and their families. A special emphasis is additionally placed on ethnocultural factors in the understanding and treatment of trauma-related disorders among Native Hawaiian/Pacific Islanders, Asian Americans, and other underserved populations. Other emphases include Active Duty military populations, non-combat trauma, women’s health, use of telehealth and technology, resilience, and early intervention/prevention intervention. The training is centered at the Pacific Islands Division of the National Center for PTSD. The Center provides comprehensive education on trauma-related disorders, including PTSD, acute stress disorder, child sexual abuse, complex trauma, and other comorbid disorders. A Fellow’s typical training plan may include three days of clinical work at the Honolulu VA, one day of research activities, and one day for didactics, individual supervision, and group supervision. Primary clinical activities take place at the Honolulu Veterans Affairs Medical Center. Secondary rotations may be available at neighbor island VA clinics, with Active Duty populations at Tripler Army Medical Center or local military bases, and with community populations at state mental health clinics.

Applicants must be US citizens, and prior to beginning the Fellowship must have completed an APA-accredited doctoral program in clinical or counseling psychology and an APA-accredited predoctoral internship. The program length is one year. Inquiries should be emailed to Julia M. Whealin, Ph.D., Deputy Director for Education, at julia.whealin@med.va.gov, or mailed to the National Center for PTSD, 1132 Bishop Street, Suite 307, Honolulu, Hawaii 96813. Application materials become available in December.

Program Description

The Tripler post-doctoral fellowship in Clinical Psychology strives to provide each fellowship with advanced training and specialty expertise. Working from a scientist-practitioner model, our two-year program is structured to produce psychologists who are capable of understanding, appreciating, and contributing to the scientific underpinnings of clinical practice. An intensive learning experience is provided through our core curriculum, which includes workshops by visiting distinguished professors, graduate-level training in psychopharmacology consistent with the APA Model Psychopharmacology Training Program, the Ethics Seminar Series, weekly core seminars, and multi-specialty case conferences. Additionally, each fellow completes intensive specialty training in Clinical Health Psychology, Child/Pediatric Psychology or Clinical Neuropsychology. Fellows in each specialty area train to national standards if such are available. The training program is housed at Tripler Army Medical Center, a major teaching hospital, with residency and fellowship programs in a variety of medical disciplines. Both Tripler and the co-located VA Medical Center are MMI accredited programs. This setting provides a rich environment for training and learning.

Fellows complete research of publishable quality in these or other areas of interest. Fellows receive training from faculty from various other disciplines including neurology, psychiatry, endocrinology, oncology, and pediatrics, and learn to work closely with physician colleagues. Please see our webpage for further information regarding our program.

Program Description
The Fellowship provides Fellows with a generalist clinical psychology training experience in which they: 1) attain advanced clinical skills with an adolescent population which manifests a broad spectrum of psychopathology, 2) develop expertise in the challenges prevalent among adolescents exhibiting delinquent behavior and substance abuse issues, 3) develop and enhance their family therapy skills while working with families of adolescents, and 4) refine group therapy skills through their exposure to adolescent and family groups. At the core of a fellow's training are his or her clinical work, individual supervision and participation in the team-work of the department. Fellows are viewed as emerging professional colleagues and are given the collaborative support and guidance they need to participate fully in the multidimensional service delivery typical of community mental health settings. With the concentrated exposure to adolescent clinical population, Fellows hone their formulation and treatment-planning skills, and they develop practical understanding of developmental issues, pathology, substance abuse issues and systemic factors. Fellows complete the fellowship year with 1875 license-eligible hours of supervised practice and with a consolidated sense of their professional competence and personal career direction. Fellows select rotations to tailor their training experience. Please visit our website at www.omniyouth.org for a complete description.

The postdoctoral Fellowship training program at OMNI is comprised of a combination of activities that emphasize learning through participation in the multidimensional roles and functions of community mental health practitioners. Five members of the permanent OMNI clinical staff form the Training Committee Team. Training staff represents considerable expertise in community counseling and psychology, as well as a long history of dedication to training new professionals.

Program Description

The program is supported by the departments of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences and the Cognitive Neurology and Alzheimer’s Disease Center at Northwestern University Medical School. Neuropsychology also has a graduate level training program within the Clinical Psychology division at the medical school. This provides opportunities for teaching and clinical supervision of graduate students. The goal of training is to provide fellows with advanced skills in clinical evaluation and diagnosis and in short-term treatment aimed at patient and caregiver education; to provide research opportunities; to provide teaching and supervision opportunities with graduate students and visiting scholars. A pervasive theme within the program is the importance of multidisciplinary cooperation at all levels - clinical, research, and academic. To this end, neuropsychology fellows participate in joint academic and research activities with fellows and staff from other disciplines, including neurology, psychiatry, social work, and basic and cognitive neuroscience. One or two postdoctoral fellowships in Clinical Neuropsychology are offered annually or every two years depending on availability of funding. Clinical responsibilities consist of inpatient evaluations of adults with a range of disorders including dementia, stroke, epilepsy, neoplasm, traumatic brain injury and psychiatric disorders. Outpatient experience is in a multidisciplinary clinical/academic unit specializing in behavioral neurology and dementia. Research areas include Alzheimer’s disease and other dementias (primary progressive aphasia, frontotemporal dementia), aging, attention, and language. Opportunities to work with the Human Brain Mapping group using functional magnetic resonance imaging are available. Direct supervision is provided by Sandra Weintraub, Ph.D., Robert Hanlon, PhD, Nancy Johnson, PhD and Suzanne Musil, Ph.D. See website: www.brain.northwestern.edu.

Program Description
Connection’s Day School (CDS) is a private therapeutic day school, founded in 1998, that serves high-risk children and adolescents in Lake County who require an alternative school program that is both educational and therapeutic. CDS utilizes therapeutic, educational, family and community connections to promote academic achievement, social/emotional well-being and personal growth. CDS Staff Members employ a variety of methods to help students make academic progress, and develop and/or improve their coping and social skills. By utilizing a combination of respect, humor, empathy, and kindness balanced with firmness (i.e., maintaining high expectations and ensuring that students adhere to rules, boundaries and limitations), Staff Members are able to establish and maintain supportive, nurturing relationships with our students. In turn, these relationships can help the students be more open to learning the life skills required for long-term success. We are seeking highly motivated individuals, who have experience working with challenging young people, and are interested in being an active part of our dynamic clinical staff. Please contact Dr. Pollina to receive more detailed information about Connection’s Day School, the Post-Doctoral Fellowship Program and application requirements.

APPLICATION NOTE: Please do not send any application materials under separate cover; all materials should be contained within the same envelope. INTERVIEW NOTE: Each candidate who is granted an interview will have his/her photo taken at the beginning of the interview. The purpose of this photo is to give every candidate an equal place in Dr. Pollina’s recollection, regardless of the date of his/her interview. This photo will be utilized exclusively for the purpose of Post-Doctoral Fellow selection at Connection’s Day School and will be destroyed at the end of this selection process.

Program Description
The Lowick C. Miller Fellowship in Pediatric/Clinical Child Psychology allows the postdoctoral fellow to develop an individually tailored experience in a multidisciplinary pediatric and child psychiatric setting. Extensive experience is available with pediatric patient populations via the Pediatric Consultation-Liaison Service with Kosair Children’s Hospital and other area hospitals in the U of L HSC system. Patients with chronic illness and serious medical problems (cystic fibrosis, childhood cancer including bone marrow transplantation, chronic fatigue syndrome, fibromyalgia, juvenile diabetes, heart transplantation, traumatic injury, brain injury, burns, etc.) are routinely seen on this service, with opportunity for outpatient involvement. Clinical populations available include outpatient children and adolescents seen through the facilities of the Bingham Clinic, the fourth oldest such facility in the country (established in 1913). This includes individual and group therapy with youth as well as parent involvement through group and individual modalities. Patients with more severe psychopathology are seen through both the Keller Partial Hospitalization Program and the Ackery Child and Adolescent Psychiatric Inpatient Service. Clinical experiences include assessment and therapy from a variety of modalities and case consultation with primary care and specialty health care providers. Fellows participate in individual and group supervision, seminars, case conferences, and service rounds. Approximately 20% of the fellow’s time is allocated for research, and a number of ongoing projects are accessible for involvement. The multiple facilities of the University of Louisville Health Sciences Center, Norton/Kosair Health Care System, and the Bingham Clinic provide state-of-the-art resources for the training program.

Program Description
PLEASE CONTACT PROGRAM FOR UPDATED INFORMATION The Postdoctoral Fellowship Program in Pediatric Psychology is designed to provide trainees with assessment and therapy experiences that are consistent with the professional expectations of a pediatric/child clinical psychologist. The goals of the fellowship are to familiarize the trainee with pediatric populations, to introduce assessment and therapy techniques that are relevant to and adapted for the acutely or chronically ill child. The fellowship is also designed to provide experience working with child and adolescent outpatient populations and their families, and to promote professional development through experience within an interdisciplinary model. A mentoring model of training is followed and consists of assigning the Fellow to one primary supervisor for the entire year, with additional supervision provided by staff involved in the trainee’s specialty rotations. In addition to verbal feedback, training will consist of observation and modeling from staff in clinical settings. Fellows will receive at least two hours of individual supervision and one hour of group supervision on a weekly basis throughout the fellowship year. The supervision provided meets post-doctoral supervision requirements for licensure by APPIC and the Louisiana State Board of Examiners of Psychologists. A competitive stipend is provided for the 12-month fellowship position. The hospital also provides a full benefits package for the fellow. Applicants should send a letter stating their interests and goals, a current vita, and 3 letters of recommendation.

Applied Behavior Analysis, Developmental Disabilities, Behavioral Pediatrics, Pediatric Feeding Disorders, Pervasive Developmental Disorders, Autism, Inpatient and Outpatient, and Family Therapy.

Program Description
The Department of Behavioral Psychology provides clinical services to a variety of pediatric populations with learning, behavioral and developmental disabilities. The Department’s philosophy is that the principles and procedures of behavioral science form the basis for effective and ethical clinical services. Fellows typically elect to develop their expertise through advanced training in one or two clinical services under the direction of an identified mentor(s). Specific training opportunities include hospital consultation in severe behavior disorders, family therapy, pervasive developmental disorders/autism, and pediatric feeding disorders in both outpatient and inpatient programs. Research participation is strongly encouraged and typically integrated into clinical experience. Fellows have the opportunity to work with their mentor to tailor the training experiences to meet their needs with regard to clinical, supervisory, research, and didactic training. Please note, we require a background check prior to final acceptance into our postdoctoral fellowship program.

Program Description

The residency program offers five positions within three areas of emphasis:&#61608; Center for Integrative Psychotherapy (2 positions). In collaboration with the Director of Training, the two residents will assume primary administrative and program development responsibility within the Center. Residents will engage a range of individual and group therapy, with a particular opportunity to pursue one’s particular clinical interests.&#61608; Interdisciplinary Psychosocial Rehabilitation (2 positions). Within this residency position, the resident will become part of an interdisciplinary team of post-graduate fellows (including psychology, psychiatry, social work and nursing). Over the course of the year, the fellows will train within two primary psychosocial rehabilitation venues, and will also become actively involved in program development and educational dissemination activities.&#61608; Neuropsychology. Within this residency position, the resident will engage neuropsychological assessment along with supervision of neuropsychology interns and practicum students. The resident will also spend one full day per week at the Alzheimer’s Disease Center, where a range of research opportunities and clinical work are available. The training philosophy of the postdoctoral program involves an integration of professional activity and training from four primary domains: clinical; program development and administration; supervision and teaching; and research. All residents train in the provision of psychological supervision to practicum students, provide both individual and group psychotherapy, engage in research or program evaluation, actively become involved in program development and administration, and present professional development and didactic seminars for psychology interns and hospital staff. The resident is afforded considerable flexibility regarding training experiences and clinical focus within each of the four domains.

Program Description

All requirements (clinical, academic, administrative) for the doctoral degree must be completed prior to September 1st and verified before July 1, of the training year. The Consortium offers postdoctoral training in the following areas: Geropsychology (1 year); Clinical Neuropsychology (2 year position); PTSD - Primary Research Focus (2 year position); PTSD - Primary Clinical Focus (1 year); Substance Abuse (1 year); Rehabilitation Psychology (1 year); and Medical Psychology (1 year). Note: Not all training areas are offered each year (see current Training Brochure and website for availability in 2008-09). The mission of the Postdoctoral Fellowship Training Program of the Boston Consortium in Clinical Psychology is to produce independently functioning psychologists. Our model for training entails four core components: (1) To identify, respect, and nurture the unique personal attributes that the Fellow brings to his or her work with patients; to provide an environment with support and guidance through supervision and collaboration with faculty actively working in the field; (2) To encourage and model a scientist-practitioner approach to professional psychology, wherein empirically-informed knowledge informs psychological assessment and intervention with children and adults and wherein questions arising from clinical practice drive research endeavors; (3) To provide a range of training settings and experiences that allow Fellows to develop a breadth of expertise in psychological practice, as well as options for developing more specific interests in depth; (4) To provide training in multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary care environments in which the Fellow develops confidence as a local mental health expert who collaborates effectively with a range of providers in the context of a large medical care system. We are an Equal Opportunity Employer committed to excellence through diversity.

Program Description

The Mental Health Service of the Harvard University Health Services offers full-time post-doctoral fellowships in clinical or counseling psychology to start September 1. The multidisciplinary staff of more than forty clinicians serves an extremely diverse population of students, staff, faculty and their family members. All students are eligible for services, as are those faculty and staff members (and their dependents) who select Harvard University Group Health Plan (HUGHP) as their HMO; fellows conduct evaluations and therapy with currently registered students and possibly their dependents. The staff is augmented by a cadre of consultants who are available to provide additional supervision. Supervision in dynamic psychotherapy and cognitive/behavioral therapy (either or both) is provided. Training opportunities in couples and group therapy may also be elected. Sixty percent of the Fellow’s week is direct patient care, the majority of which is short-term therapy. Some weekly, ongoing therapy cases are available. The remainder of time in the fellowship is comprised of supervision and seminars with different modules addressing eating disorders, diversity issues, DBT, and substance abuse. There is a weekly lecture series of invited professionals from the Greater Boston mental health community as well. While there may be only two psychology Fellows in any given year, there is a sizable group of fellows comprised of part-time psychiatric residents and social workers. This program began more than 30 years ago and is not APA-accredited. Please submit the following information by January 5th to Maureen Rezendes, Ph.D.: curriculum vita, letter of interest, letters of recommendation from three current or recent supervisors, a letter from a faculty member outlining your current status in your doctoral program, and an original transcript.

Program Description

The Clinical Psychology Training Program prepares Post-Doctoral Fellows in Psychology to understand and treat persons suffering with a broad spectrum of emotional distress, using a scholar-practitioner model. With close faculty-trained interaction, we provide a solid grounding in treatment and assessment that takes into account ethnic and cultural influences. We also teach Fellows to integrate a variety of treatment modalities while working with persons with an array of psychological problems, including persons diagnosed with major mental illness and severe personality disorders. A distinctive feature of our program is that Psychology Fellows can pursue a wide variety of individual specialty interests in the context of a Fellowship program that emphasizes growth as a professional clinical psychologist. All Fellows meet together weekly in a Professional Development Seminar, which includes such topics as providing supervision, teaching in both medical and academic settings, writing for publication, obtaining grants and conducting research, licensing procedures and legal and ethical issues for the psychologist. Fellows are evaluated by supervisors and training directors twice yearly, and the program follows the Cambridge Health Alliance's due process and grievance procedures. There are currently eight different Psychology Fellowship options available. They are: 1. Neuropsychology (Adult or Child) 2 yr outpatient; 2. Clinical Psychology (Behavioral Medicine Clinic) 2 yr requirement; 3. Clinical Psychology (Behavioral Medicine Clinic) 2 yr requirement; 4. Clinical Psychology (Couples and Family Clinic); 5. Clinical Psychology (Cultural-linguistic Clinics: Latino, Portuguese, Asian or Haitian); 6. Clinical Psychology (MIT Mental Health/adult outpatient or cultural linguistic clinic); 7. Clinical Psychology (Program for Psychotherapy) 2 yr requirement; 8. Clinical Psychology (Victims of Violence Program).

<tr>
<td>The fellowship is designed to provide postdocs with a training experience that is first, concentrated on deepening their diagnostic and clinical skills, and second, representative of university mental health practice today. We are a relatively large counseling service, highly utilized on this campus of over 14,000 students. In this setting fellows are actively engaged in the varied roles and functions of our work: evaluation and treatment of students; crisis and emergency response; consultation; and outreach programming. Boston College (BC) students are diverse and talented. At an institutional level, BC is invested in the integration of students' intellectual development with their personal formation. This makes for a psychologically rich population with which a postdoc can explore closely and intensively the practice of psychotherapy. A fellow's clinical work and individual supervision, which are the core of his/her training, are embedded in the more encompassing experience of being part of a clinical staff that is committed and thoughtful in its work. In formulating client difficulties, we emphasize psychodynamic, developmental, and culturally sensitive approaches. Formal training functions include individual supervision (3 hrs weekly); case conference; a case-based seminar in culturally competent practice; a professional practice seminar; and administrative participation. Distinct features of this advanced training experience include: 1) fellows normally advance their formulation and treatment-planning skills significantly; 2) they learn psychotherapy process with a particular class of clients who are high-functioning while also very troubled diagnostically; and 3) they develop a practical understanding of the intersections of psychopathology with developmental forces. This is an eleven-month fellowship. We have trained postdoctoral psychologists over for 13 years, and as a university service, have a history of longevity, stability and growth.</td>

Program Description

The Austen Riggs Center is a JCAHO-accredited not-for-profit private psychiatric hospital and residential treatment center with 72 patients and 26 full-time Ph.D. and M.D. staff. Situated on Main St. in the Berkshire Hills town of Stockbridge, the Center has maintained an open setting for over 85 years in which patients collaborate in all aspects of treatment. A psycho-social treatment model, drawing on the work done at Riggs by Erik Erikson and other psychoanalysts, includes four times weekly intensive psychotherapy, groups, medication, activities, and family work in the context of an active therapeutic community of examined living. A full range of assessment, including diagnostic psychological testing, is provided to each patient. At least ten hours per week are devoted to seminars, supervision, and case conferences. Research opportunities are available and presentations at national meetings are encouraged and fully supported. We offer a two-plus-two year post-doctoral Fellowship/Advanced Fellowship with benefits such as health and life insurance, annual vacation, and 2 years of psychoanalysis. We require a doctoral degree from an APA-approved program and APA-approved completed internship.

Program Description

YEAR ONE: Clinical practice and consultation in primary care - Seven half-days per week. The fellow spends the majority of his or her time as a member of primary care treatment team in one of the family practice residency clinics. This involves observing resident physicians in their practice, seeing patients jointly with physicians, and carrying a caseload referred by physicians in the practice. Program for School-Aged Children - One half-day per week. This is a family therapy/child development oriented brief assessment and treatment clinic. Faculty members are Dr. Blount and Dr. Braden, a developmental/behavioral pediatrician. Behavioral Medicine practice - One half-day per week. Working in practice with Dr. Blount at Hannemann Family Health Center in Worcester. This half-day is open clinic when patients can come without appointments. Team Precepting - One half-day per week. Team precepting is a process in which a medical faculty member and a behavioral science faculty member work together with a resident who sees a regular half-day of patients in front of the one-way glass. Seminar in Primary Care Psychology - Fellows, joined by other psychology trainees or mental health staff, take a weekly seminar in Primary Care Psychology taught by Dr. Blount with occasional guest lecturers. Fellows also round with residents on the Family Medicine inpatient unit. YEAR TWO: Clinical practice and consultation in primary care - Seven half-days per week. As in the first year, the fellow spends the majority of his or her time as a member of a primary care treatment team in a family practice residency clinic. There is special emphasis on consultation to help residents care for patients that they would have referred before and on developing population-based clinical care. Teaching and consultation at a Family Health Center - One day per week. Fellow’s research - One half-day per week.

Program Description

Our Post-Doctoral Fellowship is a twelve-month, full-time experience, with the possibility of renewal for a second year. (Full Michigan licensure requires 4000 post-doctoral hours.) Our curriculum provides advanced training and clinical experience in multicultural sensitive services to university students with a wide range of developmental issues and mental health concerns. Our practitioner-scholar training program offers hands-on experience, complemented by access to and knowledge of relevant psychological science. Within the context of our multicultural, multidisciplinary, and multitheoretical setting, our aim is to support entry-level professionals as they get ready for licensure, and to prepare them to move with competence, creativity and flexibility into professional positions in a range of settings, with a focus on counseling center practice. Post-Doctoral Fellows provide service in intake evaluation, individual counseling and psychotherapy (both brief and longer when appropriate); crisis intervention and emergency services; third party consultation; outreach; program development; group interventions (structured, semi-structured or process groups); and supervision of practicum students. Opportunities are available to make use of the MMPI-II, the MCMI-III, the NEO-PI-R and NEO-FFI, and to conduct interview assessment of substance use and eating issues. Fellows may also serve on agency committees. In addition, Post-Doctoral Fellows will choose an area of specialization. Examples include but are not limited to: 1. Administration (clinical, training, or outreach); 2. Clinical Practice (eating disorders, multicultural counseling, or sexual assault); 3. Outreach (to specific campus communities, campus substance abuse network and/or general); or 4. Clinical Scholarship/Writing. Additional program information and learning supports are described on our web site: www.umich.edu/~caps.

Program Description

Our APA-Accredited training program is based on the scientist-practitioner model. It prepares psychologists for academic careers or positions of leadership in clinical and educational settings. The program consists of a core professional development curriculum and graduated research and clinical training experiences over two years in the areas of Clinical Adult Psychology (APA Accreditation), Clinical Child Psychology (APA Specialty Accreditation), and Clinical Neuropsychology (APA Specialty Accreditation). The core curriculum exposes fellows to cutting edge topics in psychology and health care, and enhances fellows' understanding of medical/legal issues, ethical dilemmas, career development, EPPP, grant writing skills and sensitivity to cultural diversity. The Clinical Adult Psychology track focuses on depression, anxiety, and clinical outcome, and emphasizes scientific behaviorism and learning theory. Fellows are expected to become knowledgeable about and to employ empirically-supported interventions for the treatment of self-management and self-regulation disorders, anxiety, depression, and various other psychiatric conditions. The Clinical Child & Adolescent Psychology specialty track emphasizes the developmental and social contexts of child psychopathology, and the use of empirically validated assessments and interventions. Fellows gain expertise in diagnosis, assessment, and treatment of children with a wide range of psychological difficulties. They also participate in clinical research and prepare to function as independent, programmatic researchers. The Neuropsychology specialty track participates in the APPCN match process for matching applicants. This track provides advanced training in the application of knowledge of brain-behavior relationships and Clinical Psychology for the benefit of patients suffering from disorder, disease, or injury to the central nervous system. It will prepare fellows for eventual board certification in Clinical Neuropsychology.

Program Description
- As the first program in the nation to be specialty accredited in Clinical Health Psychology by the American Psychological Association (APA), we are pleased to offer a 24 month long postdoctoral residency in association with Michigan State University/Flint Area Medical Education (MSU/FAME) and the three area affiliated teaching hospitals - Genesys Regional Medical Center, Hurley Medical Center, and McLaren Regional Medical Center. Within each of these institutions consortium faculty and fellows provide clinical and didactic teaching to a variety of medical residency training programs, medical student programs, and allied health programs. Consistent with experts in the field of health psychology, the residency works toward the goal of training professional psychologists in general knowledge and skills as well as specific proficiencies and competencies. The common training elements of the residency programs include: Group Supervision (2 hrs/week), Individual Supervision, a year long Psychopharmacology curriculum, a Pathophysiology course, a Seminar Series (3 hrs/week), Continuing Medical Education lectures, Grand Rounds, noon conferences, and visiting guest lecturers. Upon graduation, fellows are ready to assume leadership roles in Clinical Health Psychology and medical education. Their training prepares them to be effective collaborators with physicians and allied health personnel, to understand the culture and language of medicine, to be able to design and implement effective education programs which incorporate sound psychological constructs.

Program Description

Our training program follows a Scholarship/Practitioner model with an emphasis on mentoring and self-directed development, and training which provides both breadth with depth. We emphasize a scholarly approach to clinical work and an integration of scientific data into the varied training experiences. Fellows may choose up to two areas of special emphasis including Health Psychology, Rehabilitation Psychology, Neuropsychology, and/or Serious Mental Disorders. Training in Health Psychology focuses on the application of psychological theory and research to the prevention, assessment, and treatment of physical illness and the promotion and maintenance of health. Training in Rehabilitation Psychology focuses on the practice of assisting individuals with disabilities in achieving optimal psychological, physical, and social functioning. Training in neuropsychology focuses on brain-behavior relationships. Fellows will gain proficiency in neuropsychological assessment techniques and instruments, interpretation of test results, report writing, and selected methods of intervention. Training in severe mental disorders focuses on the evaluation and treatment of psychopathology to enhance quality of life. Training emphasizes the multitaced nature of complex mental disorders.

Program Description
We have two different postdoctoral fellowships. One is in human sexuality and the other is in behavioral medicine. There is opportunity for some fellows to have a split fellowship if desired. This is a two-year full-time fellowship with an outstanding faculty and extensive supervision provided. The emphasis is on clinical experience and training, however there is a required research or scholarly project requirement as well. The human sexuality fellowship is offered through the Center for Sexual Health which is an outpatient clinic which treats a variety of sexual disorders and dysfunctions (average 1000 patient visits per month). This is an ideal fellowship for someone who is interested in developing a career in sex therapy, teaching, and research or adding this specialization to their training and experience. The behavioral medicine fellowship is more general dealing with general mental health. There is opportunity for some fellows to have a split fellowship if desired. The behavioral medicine fellowship is offered through one or two of our family practice clinics which are training sites for family practice residents. The Department of Family Medicine and Community Health is one of the largest departments in the country with a very strong behavioral medicine emphasis. This is an excellent opportunity to be involved in behavioral medicine in a busy outpatient family practice clinic serving an ethnically diverse and urban client population. The fellows are also involved in the behavioral medicine teaching component of the residency training program. We have one fellow completing in 2008 and anticipate adding one new fellow in September or thereabouts in 2008.

Program Description
Please see our website www.avapl.org for more detailed information and application instructions. The philosophy of training at the KCVAMC is best described as a “scholar-practitioner” model. The training experiences have a strong clinical focus. However, knowledge and use of empirically supported processes and interventions are expected and encouraged in all aspects of the program. At the end of the program, residents will be prepared to function autonomously as practicing clinical or counseling psychologists in a broad range of applied, teaching, and research settings. Applicants must have completed an APA accredited doctoral program in clinical or counseling psychology, including an APA accredited internship, prior to the residency start date. We especially encourage applications from students with knowledge and experience in diversity issues. Applicants are required to have a strong interest in mental health issues and treatment with long-term goals to provide service and contribute to this area in psychology. Program Description

In early 2002, the Federal Bureau of Prisons (BOP) launched a new treatment program for personality disordered offenders. A Postdoctoral Residency provides the opportunity to participate in the expansion, provision, and evaluation of this relatively new program. Inmates referred to the program are typically the most troublesome in the system, due to long histories of self-injurious behavior, suicide attempts, emotional instability, excessive demands for staff time, poor interpersonal skills, protective custody needs, substance abuse, angry outbursts, impulsivity, and sexual promiscuity. The Axis II Program is the first of its kind in the BOP. Although located at a medical center, patients are not psychiatric inpatients. Rather, they participate in a program which primarily uses cognitive-behavioral principles, with a foundation in Dialectical Behavior Therapy (DBT). Typical treatment goals include reducing self-injurious behavior, suicide attempts, the need for medical care, emotional instability, demands on staff time, time in special housing units, and disciplinary problems. The purpose is to make the inmates more manageable for staff and to improve the quality of life for the inmates by teaching new skills and coping strategies. Postdoctoral residents would be involved in all aspects of the program, including program development, management and treatment of patients, individual and group psychotherapy, supervision, case consultation, crisis intervention, report writing, and research.

Program Description
Two year intensive scientist-practitioner training within a rehabilitation research center housed in the Department of Rehabilitation Medicine, Mount Sinai School of Medicine in NY. Fellowships are federally funded positions under several NIDRR and CDC grants. Fellows will spend the majority of their time working closely with a multidisciplinary team of renowned clinical researchers completing ongoing research studies. Opportunities can include collaboration with the team to develop, implement, evaluate and disseminate clinical rehabilitation interventions focused on group cognitive remediation for executive dysfunctions, cognitive behavioral therapy for depression, benefits of exercise in individuals with brain injury, and/or complete evidence-based reviews. Depending on prior experience, fellows will spend 20% time in direct clinical service delivery and provide both neuropsychological assessments and interventions. Intensive research and clinical didactics are provided each week. Individual research projects are strongly encouraged with mentoring provided by senior clinical researchers. Fellows will be involved in teaching within the department's APA internship program. Fellows will participate in NIH, hospital based trainings and workshops to round out their research expertise.

Program Description

The basis of the CMHS postdoctoral training program is an apprenticeship model which promotes the independent practice of the fellow to competently perform in positions in which advanced level psychologists function. To this end, the fellowship is tailor-made to accomplish the following three objectives: 1) Add to competencies already established by rounding out training (i.e., increasing one’s depth and breadth of brief treatment) and developing a level of teaching and supervising to a level commiserate with that of an already established psychologist; 2) Begin to understand administrative functions in which psychologists engage (fellows will gain an inside perspective on the ensuing struggles among academic, clinical, and financial goals competing in the current health care market); and 3) Develop a specialized area of expertise. The latter is done in conjunction with a selected mentor and may include a clinical specialty, outreach area, or scholarly endeavor. This may result in a paper submitted for publication, presentation at a relevant conference, or in establishing a program. Possibilities are numerous and are determined in conjunction with one’s mentor. In addition, fellows conduct individual, couples and group psychotherapy, receive 4 hours of supervision, and attend selected case-oriented seminars.

Program Description
We are committed to the development of psychologist leaders who have sufficient breadth and depth of clinical knowledge to assume full responsibility for patient care, teaching, and administration of clinical programs in a variety of health care settings. Depending on the track selected and the professional goals of the applicant, trainees may also gain experience in clinical research in a variety of areas. We offer advanced education and training in four substantive areas of clinical psychology: Adult Ambulatory Psychology, Child and Adolescent Psychology, Primary Care Family Psychology and the new Rochester PRIDE track (focused on clinical work and research with communities of color). Website: www.urmc.rochester.edu/smd/psych/educ_train/training/postdoctoral/and working are prerequisites for relatedness in a multicultural context. Intensive supervision is provided for all activities and careful consideration is given to ensure diversity of clinical experience and a range of supervisory styles. UCC staff members are actively involved in and committed to the professional identity development of our post-docs. The growth, learning, and well being of our post docs are a clear priority for our training staff.

Training Opportunities

- Program Description
  - Our Post Doctoral training program reflects the belief that the post doctoral year is a critical time for professional and personal development and a time to consolidate earlier learning, to solidify a sense of oneself as a professional psychologist, and to further expand clinical and consulting skills. The program strives to strike a balance between clinical experience, clinical training, experience in consultation, and involvement in professional activities. Post Docs participate alongside senior staff in all ongoing services and activities and are responsible for intake/assessment, crisis intervention, individual, couple, and group counseling and psychotherapy; outreach activities and programming; and consultation to faculty and staff. In addition to clinical services and training, involvement in professional and administrative activities is encouraged. Post Docs inevitably work in a multicultural context wherein articles of faith are as suspect as ‘axes to grind.’ Knowledge of, and respect for, cultural and ethnic alternatives in living, loving, and working are prerequisites for relatedness in a multicultural context. Intensive supervision is provided for all activities and careful consideration is given to ensure diversity of clinical experience and a range of supervisory styles. UCC staff members are actively involved in and committed to training and make themselves available for both formal and informal consultations. In the clinical training seminar we address the theoretical and empirical aspects of doing clinical work and topics closely parallel the Post Docs’ clinical experience. Readings are drawn from classical and contemporary psychoanalytic sources with an emphasis on their relevance for the post doc’s own development and for the nature of the work at in our University setting. Post Docs are also readily informed of conferences and learning opportunities in the nearby area and in New York City.

Program Description
Cincinnati Children's Hospital Medical Center is one of the largest children's hospitals in the country with a reputation for excellence in clinical care, teaching, and research. Fellowships are available in a one- and two-year training cycle across several sub-specialties and offer a combination of training opportunities across research and clinical care. An apprenticeship model focused on active mentoring, career development, professional role identity, and development of skills in clinical research and care that ensures success as a scientist-practitioner, is a hallmark of the training program. Postdoctoral training focus areas include 1) Developmental and Behavioral Pediatrics, 2) Neuropsychology, 3) Pediatric Psychology (including Biobehavioral Assessment and Treatment, Adherence Medicine, Risk and Prevention, and Clinical Child/ADHD). Training is specific to each focus area but is expected to take place in clinical care (not less than 25%), research, teaching, administration, professional development, and community activities. Each program is developed within a focus area such that the fellow will be eligible for licensure at the end of the fellowship. For all areas applicants must have a doctoral degree from an APA approved program, completed an APA approved internship, and defended their dissertation prior to beginning the fellowship. Some of the fellowship positions are supported by an NIH/NIDDK Postdoctoral Training Grant in Child Behavior and Nutrition (Program Director: Scott W. Powers, Ph.D.). Specific information regarding each focus area can be obtained from Dev Beh Pediatrics: J. Credon, Ph.D. (513)636-4633; Neuropsychology: M. Program Description:
The VHA National Center for Organization Development (NCOD) offers a two-year postdoctoral fellowship in Organization Consulting and Development. The Center serves VHA facilities and offices nationwide. The Center’s practice is based on an action research model, and its services include executive coaching, leadership development and assessment, team building, strategic planning, large and small group facilitation, work redesign, survey design and analysis, and psychoeducation interventions. The postdoctoral training program offers trainees the opportunity to “learn by doing,” and they are involved in all aspects of the Center’s work. All trainees participate in weekly didactic seminars based on readings from psychology and business sources and on work experiences in the field. The supervision model affords trainees the opportunity to learn from several senior psychologists and practitioners. The Center’s staff provides rich, intensive feedback to trainees on an ongoing basis. Trainees are expected to have a strong organizational and clinical background and to display a high level of professionalism in all aspects of their work. The ability to work effectively as a member of a fast-paced, high performing team is essential. Trainees must be willing to travel frequently (at least two weeks per month) and to work on evening and early morning shifts when needed. Trainees will accrue the clinical hours necessary for licensure in the state of Ohio during their tenure in the program, and candidates are expected to attain licensure by the end of the two-year training program. Candidates from doctoral programs in clinical, counseling, social, or I/O psychology are encouraged to apply. Candidates must have completed all requirements for their doctorate, including defense of a dissertation, prior to the start of the postdoc in September, 2008.

Program Description

The LSDDVAMC offers APA accredited Postdoctoral Residencies in Clinical Psychology in two separate emphasis areas: (1) Geropsychology and (2) Psychosocial Rehabilitation of the Seriously Mentally Ill. These one-year, full-time fellowships provide depth of training for advanced competence in these emphasis areas. We follow a practitioner-scholar training model. The Geropsychology Fellowship has a geriatric health psychology emphasis, with core training in in- and out-patient work 3 days per week (an inpatient medical Geriatric Evaluation & Management Unit and Geriatric Outpatient Clinic) and an additional 8 hours/week rotation in other geriatric areas (e.g. psychiatry, neuropsychology) elected by the Fellow. The SMI Fellowship employs a recovery model to afford the Fellow a sequential experience in the entire continuum of care for this population, from inpatient psychiatry and consultation through day programs to community involvement. Training emphasis is given to evidence-based practices, with competency development in psychosocial skills training and cognitive-behavioral psychotherapy. Both Fellowships require completion of a scholarly project for which fellows are given 8 hours/week time. Applicants must be graduates of an APA accredited program in clinical or counseling psychology and have successfully completed an APA accredited internship. The successful candidates will have to pass a physical exam, background security check, and possible random drug screen (all routine) prior to final appointment. An oath of office is required.

Program Description

These one- or two-year Fellowships associated with the Department of Psychology at The Children’s Hospital of Philadelphia are designed for individuals who have completed all doctoral degree requirements and who aspire to academic careers and leadership positions in pediatric medical settings or university departments supporting Ph.D. training programs. Diverse pediatric populations, including infants, preschoolers, school age, and adolescent cohorts presenting with developmental disorders, behavior problems, and/or chronic illness/disability receive family-centered, evidence-based treatments within an interdisciplinary context. Opportunities exist to acquire or refine skills pertaining to Clinical-Child Pediatric Psychology, Early Childhood and ADHD/Community Schools Psychology. Training occurs in both in- and outpatient clinical settings. Training and supervision is provided in vivo, in office, and during small and large group rounds. Video-mediated training facilities are available. Research opportunities are abundant. We offer the opportunity for fellows to be involved in federally funded research programs in psychosocial interventions within pediatric oncology, community-based ADHD intervention, violence prevention in urban schools, and pain intervention with adolescents with sickle cell disease. Other available research initiatives include developing parenting skills in an urban group of mothers, and adherence to treatment for chronic pediatric diseases. Specific areas of focus vary each year and available positions are posted on our website by December. Didactic seminars, conferences, and rounds are frequent and address multiple topics and methodologies. Fellows have direct access to all faculty and staff and work closely with one or two mentors who ensure programmatic integrity and continuity. Fellows receive institutional support when searching for career-enhancing positions.

Program Description

The purpose of the residency is to engage the resident in all aspects of University Counseling Center service and administration in order to provide preparation for a career in university counseling. To this end, the core of the resident’s training includes individual counseling with students, crisis response, individual supervision, participation on the Center’s Consultation/Outreach Team, and participation in department projects and initiatives. The residency begins with two weeks of orientation prior to the start of the fall semester. Once the semester begins, residents begin to build a caseload of individual clients up to an average of 20 per week. Upon completion of training in our career assessment process, residents also begin to see clients for career counseling. In September, residents begin to take “on-call” duty on a rotating basis. As residents become more comfortable and familiar with the center and the university, they are asked to take on more responsibilities. Residents are sometimes asked to lead on administrative projects, such as coordinating research efforts or organizing outreach functions. They are often asked to participate in university functions as a representative of the Counseling Center. By the spring semester, residents are expected to function as senior staff at the center. They are offered the opportunity to form and lead a group on the topic of their choosing. While still under supervision, residents are expected to take more initiative and demonstrate increasing independence in their work. Residents are formally evaluated at the mid-point of the residency and at the completion of the residency. In the event of a grievance, due process is followed and grievance procedures are in place to assure fair resolution. The residency consists of 1800 hours of supervised professional psychological activities, and it meets the post doctoral supervised experience requirements for licensure in Pennsylvania.

Program Description
The Clinical Psychology Training Consortium offers two types of fellowships, hospital based CLINICAL RESEARCH fellowships and NIH funded research fellowships. The NIH RESEARCH FELLOWSHIPS are: NIMH Research Training in Child Mental Health; NIAAA Research Training in Alcohol Intervention/Treatment; NIDA Research Training in Substance Abuse Intervention Outcome Treatment; NIA Research Training in Dementia Research; NIMH Training in Treatment Research; NHLBI Training in Cardiovascular Behavioral Medicine. The purpose of the CLINICAL RESEARCH fellowship is to provide a training experience that ensures the development of competency in a specific area of clinical psychology including: Adult Clinical, Child Clinical, Behavioral Medicine, and Clinical Neuropsychology. All clinical research fellowships have a minimum of 20% research time. The exact nature of training (e.g., didactic experiences, percentage of direct patient care, exposure to ongoing faculty research, direct research involvement of the Fellow) is decided on an individual basis by the Fellow and his/her primary faculty mentor. The clinical experiences vary greatly depending on patient populations and hospital settings. Training objectives are achieved through an apprenticeship model where the Fellow works closely with a faculty member in the provision of clinical services and/or in conducting research. The faculty member serves as primary supervisor and role model, and the close supervisory relationship permits the Fellow to develop clinical skills and research skills as well as role identity. In most fellowships, there are typically at least two other supervisors directly involved with the Fellow. Number and type of fellowships vary from year-to-year and most are 2 years in duration.

Program Description
This post-doctoral psychology program (2 positions) exists within an interdisciplinary training program and provides more intensive supervised training in clinical psychology with an emphasis in substance abuse. In this program, postdoctoral psychology fellows address the problem of chemical dependency among veterans as members of interdisciplinary teams. The psychology fellow combines psychological assessment and individual and group psychotherapy both to conceptualize the psychosocial needs of the substance-abusing veteran and to facilitate the veterans' development of adaptive coping strategies as alternatives to continued substance abuse. These goals are achieved by performing assessments as needed and as requested by the treatment team, conducting individual psychotherapy, co-leading psychosocial and process-oriented group psychotherapy, attending continuing education programs on substance abuse, and participating actively in all interdisciplinary treatment team meetings. Other fellows (N = 3) in the fellowship program include members from the following disciplines: social work, psychiatric nursing, occupational therapy, and chaplaincy. Opportunities exist to work with veterans diagnosed with HIV or AIDS, with families, with elderly veterans, with veterans with dual diagnoses, and with homeless veterans. A minimum of 2 hours per week of individual supervision with a licensed psychologist will be provided, and the fellow will be required to attend training seminars and case conferences throughout the year. Applicants must have received their doctoral degree in clinical or counseling psychology and must have completed a predocoral internship, both of which must be accredited by the American Psychological Association.

Program Description
The postdoctoral program at UTMB provides specialty postdoctoral training in clinical health psychology. The positions are typically funded by NIH, HRSA, and NSDR grants. Clinical settings are focused on health psychology and combine research and clinical service (approximately 50% each). The clinical component provides psychological services including evaluation, consultation, and treatment in a number of settings including pain management, oncology, and/or pediatric psychology. Research opportunities are dependent on funding. Teaching opportunities exist in the clinical psychology course and the sexual health and rehabilitation course both coordinated by the training director. Inpatient work is also available on the geriatrics unit and a wide variety of surgical units focusing on pain management. Opportunities exist to work with children and adolescents at the Shriner's Burns Hospital. It is expected the postdoc will work in conjunction with on-going research projects and develop at least one project with the goal of publication or grant funding. UTMB has a scientist practitioner model of training and includes didactics and supervision of no less than 2 hours per week of individual face to face supervision. The program is designed to enhance research and clinical skills to prepare the trainee for a position in a medical or academic setting.

Additional Information About Training Opportunities

The training program is flexible and tailored to the fellow's interests and needs; although some activities are required, there is considerable room for customization within the general categories of training activities.

Program Description

Ben Taub General Hospital is a county-funded general hospital built in 1963 to serve the needs of the Houston area. The Psychiatry Service provides inpatient and outpatient treatment for medically indigent and psychiatrically impaired persons. As a member of the Psychiatry team, the post-doctoral fellow will provide assessment and therapy services to psychiatric outpatients and assessment and consultation service to medical patients through the Consultation and Liaison Service, as well as participate in ongoing research protocols and initiate research protocols relevant to the Service. Specific activities include serving as a primary clinician in the Intensive Outpatient Program, a multi-disciplinary program for patients with Axis I and Axis II disorders; providing individual and/or group psychotherapy to children, adolescents, and adults; and conducting psychological and neuropsychological evaluations. Members of both the psychology and psychiatry faculty provide supervision as appropriate to the clinical work being done and research activities pursued by the fellow. A full range of educational opportunities of the Baylor College of Medicine and the Texas Medical Center is available, including Baylor Psychiatry Grand Rounds, on-site workshops, and regularly scheduled training activities (e.g., individual and group supervision), as well as a post-doc seminar series for Baylor-affiliated fellows in the Houston area. The fellow is expected to develop at least one research project for presentation and/or publication, to provide lectures appropriate for the training of psychology and psychiatry interns and residents, and to participate in the training activities of the Service for interns, psychiatry residents, medical students, and other staff in training at Ben Taub General Hospital. In addition, the fellowship meets the licensure requirements for the state of Texas, and the fellow is encouraged to pursue licensure in Texas during the fellowship year.

Program Description

This one-year postdoctoral training program is based in a private psychiatric hospital which is well-known for high quality patient care. The theoretical orientation is broadly psychodynamic, but with opportunities for cognitive-behavioral and other empirically-based approaches. The educational mission of Menninger is to train promising young clinicians in advanced concepts of psychotherapy and psychological testing. Postdoctoral fellows work as primary clinicians with a multidisciplinary team in a fully integrated, biopsychosocial model. The primary clinician is responsible for coordinating patient care, administering and interpreting psychological tests, providing individual and family therapy and group therapy to patients. Patient treatment episodes range from approximately 2 weeks to 4-5 months, affording an opportunity for intensive psychotherapeutic interventions and complex diagnostic work. Clinical supervision of 3-4 hours per week and didactic training round out the training experience. The program has recently moved from Topeka, Kansas to its new location in Houston, Texas where it is affiliated with the Baylor College of Medicine and Methodist Hospitals.

Program Description
We offer scientist-practitioner training in applied clinical psychology in a medical school-affiliated VA medical center setting. There are three postdoctoral residency training tracks: A two-year specialty track in Neuropsychology; a one-year specialty-focus track in Primary Care/Health Psychology and a one-year specialty focus-track in Palliative Care Psychology. All tracks are accredited by APA, and the Neuropsychology track is approved by APPCN. All residents are required to plan and conduct research projects, make professional presentations, and complete program evaluation projects, in addition to their clinical training experiences. Except for the Neuropsychology track, we usually select postdoctoral residents from our own internship class (from those in analogous special-focus tracks). To be selected, our interns must have collected all of their dissertation data, be progressing satisfactorily in their internship, and be approved by the special-focus track preceptor (all by December 1st of their internship year). These in-house selections are made by December 15th to allow time for open recruitment for any unfilled postdoctoral positions. Applicants should contact the Director of Training after that date regarding any openings not filled by internal candidates.
The United States Air Force offers two-year Postdoctoral Fellowship positions in Clinical Health Psychology (CHP) to qualified psychologists. The positions are located in San Antonio, Texas, at Wilford Hall Medical Center (WHMC), the largest medical center in the U. S. Air Force. WHMC is a teaching hospital with over 50 medical specialty and allied health training programs. The fellowship is a comprehensive program of supervised clinical training, teaching, supervision, and research in the specialty area of CHP. The treatment programs include working as part of multidisciplinary/interdisciplinary teams including the following programs: Pain Management, Diabetes Education, TMD/Osteliac Pain Treatment, Burn Unit, Tobacco Cessation, Cardiac/Pulmonary Rehabilitation, and the Sleep Center. Fellows also gain experience as behavioral health consultants in Obetetrics. The education program consists of weekly workshops, professional seminars in CHP, Distinguished Visiting Professor Program, and attendance at one national psychology conference. Fellows participate in active research protocols and are expected to produce professional papers for submission to peer-reviewed journals or presentation at a national conference. Fellows also gain experience in grant writing. During the second year, fellows receive training in population health-level program management as well as neuropsychology assessment. In recent years most fellows have been selected from those already on active duty as a licensed Air Force clinical psychologist with several years of professional experience. Highly qualified civilian applicants with similar credentials will be considered for acceptance into the fellowship training program. The program usually accepts applicants who are licensed psychologists with one or more years experience beyond completion of their psychology internship program. The application due date is approximately 1 year prior to the start date of the fellowship program.

Program Description

PLEASE CONTACT PROGRAM FOR UPDATED INFORMATION

ECC and EFI are dedicated to providing excellence in Christian psychological and counseling services. EFi, which residents in clinical psychology, interns, and practica students are affiliated with, provides therapeutic and educational services, counselor training, and world mission support. The integration of Biblical truth with empirically-based treatments provides a basis for treating individuals in the community and church to transform lives and reduce human suffering. Clinical staff draw from a number of theoretical orientations, such as cognitive-behavioral, family systems, and experiential as appropriate. Specialized training in Parent-Child Interaction Therapy (PCIT), Dialectical-Behavior Therapy (DBT) and marriage/family therapy are available. Residents are supervised by two licensed clinical psychologists, and also receive group supervision. In addition to being assigned to the main office in Norfolk, residents will provide therapeutic services in several other settings within the Hampton Roads area, such as Portsmouth and Chesapeake. In addition to the didactic seminars facilitated by clinical staff at ECC, residents have the opportunity to attend monthly colloquia at Regent University, which has an APA-accredited Psy.D. program, and to attend monthly seminars at a local psychiatric facility. Although it is not required, residents are encouraged to participate in research and to present their findings in their area of specialty for the edification of the organization and for professional development purposes.

Program Description

The primary goal of this clinical psychology postdoctoral program is to provide the Resident with advanced training through an extensive range of supervised clinical activities within the context of a large, multidisciplinary community mental health system. The context of learning includes adults, adolescents, and children receiving outpatient psychotherapy and medication services. Residents also complete psychological testing evaluations on children, adolescents and adults. Each resident usually has the opportunity to see children, adolescents and adults during the training year. Sometimes the resident has a primary placement in Youth & Family Services or in Adult Services. Other times, each resident is placed on one Youth & Family Services team and one Adult Services Team. The resident receives two hours of individual face to face supervision with a licensed psychologist throughout the year. The resident registers this postdoctoral residency supervision with the Board of Psychology in Virginia. This registration allows the resident to take the psychologist licensing exams during the training year.

Program Description
Postdoctoral Fellowships are available with an emphasis in either substance abuse or PTSD. 1) A fellowship in addictions treatment is offered through the Center of Excellence in Substance Abuse Treatment and Education (CESATE) - one of only two programs funded nationally by the Department of Veterans Affairs to offer a specialized clinical fellowship in the interdisciplinary approach to substance abuse disorders. The primary goal of this fellowship is to provide clinical training in the interdisciplinary assessment and treatment of substance abusers, intended to prepare fellows to assume clinical, academic and administrative positions in a variety of settings. 2) A fellowship in PTSD is available in the Mental Illness Research, Education and Clinical Center (MIRECC). This two-year fellowship has a research emphasis (75% research, 25% clinical time). The primary goal of this training is to prepare fellows for independent investigator status in VA Medical Center and academic settings, with expertise in trauma disorders. Applicants for all positions must be US citizens, and must have completed a doctoral degree from an APA accredited graduate program and an APA accredited internship prior to the start of the fellowship. Inquiries should be directed to Steve McCutcheon, PhD, at the above address.

Program Description

The Post-Doctoral Fellowship in Pediatric Psychology at Madigan Army Medical Center is an intensive two-year training program in the Department of Psychology with an emphasis upon child development and behavioral medicine. The program begins in September. One position is open to licensed military active-duty psychologists and one position is open to civilian applicants. The primary goal of the fellowship program is to provide advanced training in pediatric psychology. Major areas of focus are normal child development, developmental pediatrics, behavioral medicine interventions, dysmorphology, developmental and intellectual assessment, childhood psychopathology, pediatric consultation/liaison services, and military related adjustment. During the year the fellows provide services in various settings within the medical center. These areas include the developmental pediatrics clinic, high-risk newborn follow-up clinic, pediatric ward, well baby clinic, dysmorphology clinic, and pediatric subspecialty clinics (e.g., pediatric neurology, pediatric oncology/hematology, pediatric endocrinology). Additionally, fellows are expected to develop one area of specialization and produce a publishable professional project. The fellowship program is geared toward training fellows who can deliver high quality clinical services and who can train and supervise interns and other pediatric psychologists. Finally, the fellow has the advantage of cross training in weekly clinics with pediatric fellows from the Developmental and Behavioral Pediatric Fellowship at Madigan Army Medical Center, as well as residents from the Pediatric Residency.

Program Description

- The University of Washington (UW) Department of Psychiatry, Division of Public Behavioral Health and Justice Policy, and Western State Hospital (WSH), through the Washington Institute for Mental Illness Research and Training, jointly sponsor a postdoctoral fellowship in forensic clinical psychology.
- The fellowship runs from September through August, full time. The goal of the fellowship is to train crime specialists in the practice and research of forensic clinical psychology who will lead the development of the field.
- The fellowship provides abundant opportunities for supervised practice and advanced training in the integration of science and practice. Some fellowship training activities (e.g., seminar and cross-training with law students) occur in tandem with our ACGME-accredited post-doctoral training program in forensic psychiatry and a forensic post-doctoral training program.
- Forensic clinical psychology and adolescent treatment offered by the University of Washington at the Child Study and Treatment Center (CSTC) are available to WSH. Work sites include WSH, CSTC, local correctional facilities, community, and private practice settings.
- The fellowship program also maintains an active, collegial relationship with the Seattle University School of Law.

Program Description

The Postdoctoral Psychology Fellowship offers one position in each of two specialties: Pediatric Psychology and Child/Adolescent Clinical Psychology. The Pediatric Psychology Fellow is trained in the assessment and treatment of the problems of children and adolescents with medical disorders. The Pediatric Fellow spends half of each week in supervised experience on the inpatient pediatric, pediatric intensive care and neonatal intensive care units of St. Joseph's Childrens Hospital and the other half in the outpatient Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Health. The Child/Adolescent Psychology Fellow is based in the outpatient Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Health and has a part-time rotation at a local inpatient unit for adolescents, once licensed. Both fellows receive training in the assessment and treatment of children and adolescents with a wide range of behavioral and emotional problems. Assessment procedures include psychological testing, behavioral questionnaires, diagnostic interviewing and collateral interviews. Interventions include individual therapy, parent guidance, family therapy and group therapy. Fellows receive approximately three hours of individual supervision per week, participate in weekly postdoctoral seminars and are encouraged to attend other conferences within the medical complex. The faculty utilize a variety of therapeutic approaches, but the prevailing approach is behavioral or cognitive-behavioral embedded in a developmental and systematic understanding of the child. The fellowship is one year with the option to apply for a second year. The goal of the program is to facilitate the development of professional psychologists with advanced skills in child and pediatric psychology to function independently in a variety of practice settings. Most of our program information and the application are available through the clinic website at www.marshfieldclinic.org.

Program Description

The program operates within a scholar-practitioner model. There are three fellowship positions each with a specific area of concentration: one in Geropsychology, one in Palliative Care, and one in Psychosocial Rehabilitation. Fellows will be prepared for psychological practice either with older adults, with patients with end-stage disease, or with the seriously mentally ill, including those with co-morbid substance abuse. While the training primarily occurs within the context of the delivery of psychological services, training needs always take priority over service needs. The objective of the fellowship program is to provide the environment and experience that will promote in-depth development in each area of concentration. The goal of effective independent practice requires competence in assessment, interdisciplinary consultation, individual and systems-based interventions, program development and evaluation, staff training and development, and bioethics. Within each area of competence, sound clinical skill and judgment, an active knowledge of current research, and an ability to teach and communicate well with clients and other professionals are required. The fellowship program is organized around a core of clinical experiences, but allows some flexibility in pursuing individual goals. While there are sometimes opportunities to conduct research during the fellowship, the major emphasis is on clinical practice.
