

LISTING OF DOCTORAL INTERNSHIP PROGRAMS

- Programs are organized alphabetically by state; by city within state; and by agency within city. Programs outside of the United States are listed last.
- APPIC is not an accrediting agency. Listing in the directory indicates that program applications have been reviewed by APPIC Membership Committees and that the programs as submitted are in compliance with the requisites for APPIC Membership described in the policy section of the Directory.
- The information in the directory listings has been updated online by each program's training director and was correct as of May 2005. APPIC does not take responsibility for information that has been incorrectly entered by training directors.
- APA accreditation status is accurate as the directory goes to press, and may change between this date and the appearance of the directory. Interested readers should contact APA and/or individual programs for information about current APA accreditation status.

Additional Information About Training Opportunities

Focus on health psych can be substantially more than a minor specialty. Also, interns work one shift/week in the psychiatric emergency room (Acute Care Services) while on the outpatient major rotation. Previous interns have viewed this as one of the highlights of their training here.

Additional Information About Training Opportunities

The Arizona Psychology Training Consortium provides two-day training events each month. Residents travel to many training sites throughout Arizona to gain first-hand experience with different clinical populations and treatment modalities.

Program Description

The Arizona Psychology Training Consortium is a non-profit subsidiary corporation of the Arizona Psychological Association. The Consortium was developed to create internships and postdoctoral residencies. School district, alternative school, substance abuse, Native American, and private practice sites are available. There are no clinical rotations between the training sites. All of the residencies provide advanced training in psychotherapy, cultural diversity, and independent practice. There is a considerable amount of travel to the statewide training events. Training opportunities are provided by academicians and practitioners from several Arizona universities, community agencies, and practices. In addition, members of the Arizona Psychological Association serve as mentors to residents to enhance their career development and networking opportunities. There is a selection preference for applicants from Arizona universities and internship programs, but applicants from any regionally accredited Clinical, Counseling, and School Psychology programs are encouraged to apply. Applicants must send at least two complete application packets. One complete application packet goes to the Consortium. Also send one complete application packet to each individual training site of interest. Please review the application procedures described on the Arizona Psychological Association website at www.azpa.org.

Program Description

The Counseling & Consultation (C&C) postdoctoral residency is a 2000 hour, 12 month advanced training program designed to prepare the resident for a staff psychologist position in a university counseling center. It meets the postdoctoral supervised experience requirements for licensure in Arizona. C&C has a multidisciplinary staff, including psychologists, counselors, social workers, and psychiatrists. Its mission is to serve a diverse student population, and models and promotes the valuing of human differences on individual, organization, and community levels as well as the facilitation of human potential. Of the clients seen at C&C, 10% are Latino (a), 5% are Asian American, 4% are African American, and 2% are Native American, which is representative of the diversity of the larger ASU student body. The postdoctoral resident is encouraged to tailor the program to specific interest areas. Depending upon agency resources, possible interest areas include: 1) work with a particular clinical population such as substance abuse, eating disorders, men's issues; 2) diversity focus- examples could be: working with an ethnically diverse clientele or working with diversity of sexual orientation; 3) outreach and consultation; 4) agency administration. At the beginning of the program, the resident meets with the Training Director to develop a training contract reflecting individual interests. The program uses a developmental-practitioner training model and training activities are focused on developing existing skills through a range of professional activities, training, and feedback. Residents provide individual and group therapy, outreach and consultation, crisis intervention (both daytime and after-hours), and supervise masters or doctoral level advanced practicum students. Residents participate in weekly clinical team meetings, agency staff meetings, staff development programs, and agency committees.

Additional Information About Training Opportunities

There will be extensive use of audio and videotaping of clients in our clinical supervision.

Program Description

A Better Way, Inc. is a nonprofit organization established seven years ago as a Foster Family program serving the needs of the Bay Area, predominantly Alameda and Contra Costa Counties. The clinical program integrates individual, group, assessment, and family therapy. The multilingual and multicultural staff reflects the diversity of the children and parents served. The overall goal of this program is to provide excellent clinical services to the population that accesses our services. The focus of the interns work will be with children and their families. Interns will have the opportunity to participate in several specialty seminars: (1) infant-parent dyadic therapy, (2) cross-culturally sensitive assessment, and (3) family therapy. Direct observations, as well as videotaping of sessions for feedback to clients and interns will also be a part of the supervisory experience.

Program Description

Casa Pacifica is a residential treatment center and a non-public school for emotionally disturbed adolescents within the community. We also offer temporary shelter for abused and neglected children and adolescents. Our two-year postdoctoral program offers advanced general training in child and adolescent clinical psychology with emphasis on community mental health. Our training program is an organized experience which, in contrast to on-job training, is designed to provide the Fellow with a planned, programmed sequence of supervised training experiences. We also provide advanced clinical training in cognitive-behavioral interventions, crisis management, brief and long-term psychotherapy, group therapy, and consultation. Our supervision satisfies California licensing requirements. To be eligible, applicants must have completed a doctoral program in clinical or counseling psychology and preference is given to applicants from programs with APA accreditation. Admission requirements include completion of all professional doctoral degree requirements from a regionally accredited institute of higher education or an APA/CPA-accredited program and completion of a Predoctoral internship that meets APPIC standards. Applicants must provide a letter from the director of the graduate program that stipulates the applicant has completed requirements for the doctorate and will graduate by the starting date of the Fellowship. WE REQUIRE COMPLETION OF A CASA PACIFICA POSTDOCTORAL APPLICATION. Casa Pacifica is located outside of Los Angeles in the community of Camarillo, a few miles from the Pacific Ocean and one hour south of Santa Barbara. It is a beautiful setting adjacent to California's newest University at Channel Islands.

Program Description

Our fellowship program provides advanced training opportunities in the core service areas provided by CAPS including: Intake Assessment, Crisis Intervention, Brief Psychotherapy, Multicultural Counseling, Career Counseling, Consultation to Campus Units and Departments, Program Development and Outreach. The program stresses Generalist Training, with the goal of preparing the fellow for a staff position in a university counseling center. At the same time, this program offers specialized training in several emphasis areas ' Behavioral Medicine, Eating Disorders, Sports Psychology, Supervision, and a Clinical Practice area ' depending upon fellow's interests and experience level, as well as the current needs of the Center. The educational philosophy and training model is to provide training grounded in the scientific principles of our profession that emphasize the area of applied practice. The overarching objective is to train ethical, competent psychologists who are capable of functioning independently and will contribute both to the welfare of society and to the profession. The training staff realizes that the most important learning occurs through providing service under the direct supervision and mentorship of a senior staff professional. Such "learning by doing" is guided, enriched and deepened through the postdoctoral seminar and clinical rotations, consultations, and in-service staff development activities. The fellowship program is defined by a commitment to the following goals: Goal #1: Commitment to mentoring and the scientist-practitioner model. Goal #2: Commitment to a broad range of skill development. Goal #3: Commitment to training in providing services to a diverse clientele. Goal #4: Commitment to facilitating personal growth and professional identity. Goal #5: Commitment to flexibility in developing each fellow's training program. See our website for a full description of our postdoctoral program.

Program Description

LMU is a private, Catholic undergraduate and graduate institution located on the bluffs above Marina del Rey. Student Psychological Services is a department in the Division of Student Affairs. "In a belief that the glory of God is a human being fully alive, the Division of Student Affairs supports the University mission through programs and services designed to advance student learning." In keeping with the mission, SPS aims "to foster students' personal, social, and intellectual development and emotional health by providing psychological services to students and by serving as an educational and consultative resource to the University community. Services are provided in a safe environment that is respectful of cultural and individual differences." LMU is a highly ranked regional university, and the student body of approximately 6,000 undergraduates and 2,000 graduate students is highly diverse. SPS is centrally located in new offices. Our postdoctoral fellowship is in its 6th year. In addition to providing direct services, Fellows participate in campus events, serve on university committees, and conduct research/program evaluation. Supervision meets licensure requirements, and Fellows have the opportunity to work with all staff members. Required hours are 1500 for the year.

Program Description

The Reiss-Davis Child Study Center has been offering advanced training to mental health professionals for over 50 years. A member of the outpatient division of Vista Del Mar Child and Family Services, a non-profit organization serving children and their families through a variety of modalities, the Center is located on the 17 acres campus of its parent agency in the heart of West Los Angeles. The Center offers two separate Postdoctoral Fellowship Tracks: Track 1: The Fellowship in Psychodynamic Child-Adolescent Psychotherapy and Psychodiagnostics Track, offers a 24-month part-time (20-25 hours/week) program for psychologists and social workers who wish to further their training in psychodiagnostic and psychotherapeutic work with children, adolescents and their families from a psychodynamic developmental point of view. In the course of their training, fellows carry a weekly caseload of 8-12 clinical hours while receiving 2-3 hours of individual, 1-2 hours of group supervision and 10-12 hours of weekly didactic instruction on all aspects of child-adolescent-parent work. Seminars are taught and supervision is provided by seasoned clinicians from the disciplines of psychology, psychiatry, psychoanalysis and social work. Track 2: The Fellowship in Child-Adolescent Psychodiagnostic Testing Track, offers a 24-month part-time (15-18 hours/week) program for psychologists who are interested in learning how to administer, score, and interpret educational, psychological, attentional, and neurological tests. Participants in this fellowship carry a caseload of 3-4 psychoeducational test batteries at any given time while receiving 1 hour of individual, 1 hour of group supervision as well as didactic instruction on diagnostic evaluations and psychological, educational, and neurological testing, all by clinicians with expertise in assessment. Both tracks begin in September of each year and end in August two years later and award a certificate of completion upon graduation.

Program Description

The Postdoctoral Fellowship Program in Neuropsychology at the UCLA Neuropsychiatric Institute and Hospital (NPIH) aims to prepare clinician-scientists for careers in academic research and clinical applications within the specialty area of neuropsychology. The program offers training in a series of six tracks with clinician/educator and academic/research emphases, including: 1) General Track - 1 opening; 2) Child Track - 0 openings; 3) Geropsych Track - 0 openings; 4) Neurology of Aging - 1 opening; 5) HIV/AIDS Research Track - 2 openings. All Fellows, regardless of track, receive broad training and experience in both research and practice. All residents share an extensive curriculum of didactic and experiential offerings, and training programs are individually tailored to achieve specific goals considering the Resident's prior competencies and experiences. Patient populations span all age groups, and both clinical applications and research projects target a diversity of neurologic, psychiatric, and general medical disorders, with integration across diverse departments and centers including: Psychiatry and Biobehavioral Sciences, Neurology, Neurosurgery, the Brain Injury Research Center, and Ahmanson-Lovelace Brain Mapping Center at UCLA. Additional offerings are made possible through strong collaborations with centers of excellence off-campus, including The Help Group (with a focus on neurodevelopmental disabilities), the Veterans Administration Greater Los Angeles Health Care System (VAGLAS, with a focus on HIV/AIDS and major mental illness), and The University Neuropsychology Group in Pasadena.

Program Description

The University of Southern California University Center for Excellence in Developmental Disabilities (USC UCEDD) at Children's Hospital Los Angeles (CHLA) offers an advanced one and two-year postdoctoral training program in Clinical Child Psychology. The program offers unique training experiences in clearly defined specialty areas. Individuals are recruited specifically for each specialty area and are offered training opportunities in a variety of departments and clinical services. The specialty practice areas include Pediatric Psychology, Early Childhood Mental Health, Trauma Psychology, Child and Family Therapy, Adolescent Medicine, and Pediatric Feeding Disorders. The postdoctoral training program at CHLA is based on an integrated community mental health and health psychology model. It is designed to train psychologists to assume leadership roles as experts in clinical psychology in pediatric community and medical settings. Depending on the specialty chosen, fellows may be gaining professional experiences in outpatient mental health clinics, community clinics, schools and/or pediatric hospital units. Through intensive supervision, didactic lectures and seminars, research and program development activities, and ample direct patient contact and consultation opportunities, fellows enhance and develop advanced clinical skills in their specialty area. The program will only accept graduates of APA accredited programs who will have completed APA accredited internships and all the requirements for graduation by September 1, 2006.

Program Description

The USC Institute of Psychiatry, Law, and Behavioral Science is an integrated part of the USC Department of Psychiatry and has been in existence since 1963. It offers a full-time one year Fellowship and an option for a second year. Psychology Fellows are offered the same training and education as Psychiatry Fellows. All Fellows serve under supervision as consultants and as expert witnesses for the State and Federal Criminal Court, Family Law Court, Mental Health Court, Juvenile Court, and County and Federal Probation as well as the State Parole Board. Each Fellow is assigned approximately two cases per week involving psychological-legal issues for the courts and various administrative hearings. The Fellows have at least seven USC Fellowship-trained faculty supervisors at any given time. The Fellows also conduct treatment of mentally disordered offenders. Courses specifically designed for the Fellows include: criminal law, civil law, juvenile law, family law, mental health law, videotape seminar, a course on landmark mental health law cases, correctional psychology, and legal and ethical issues related to the practice of forensic psychology. Courses and seminars are approximately 10-12 hours per week. The lecturers are forensic psychologists and psychiatrists, judges, attorneys and professionals in other forensic related disciplines. Each Fellow teaches and supervises USC psychiatric residents in the area of psychiatry and the law. Moreover, there are clinical case conferences where each Fellow presents a forensic case demonstrating his/her knowledge and application of clinical material to the legal issues. Additionally, each fellow will serve as a consultant to the largest jail in the United States, working with both male and female arrestees. Finally, each fellow will have an opportunity to conduct a psychological autopsy for the Los Angeles County Department of Coroner. Use the telephone number and address listed above for inquiries and application.

Program Description

The Postgraduate Center's full-time and half-time postdoctoral training program is designed to develop and refine competence in the conduct of long-term, intensive psychotherapy and brief psychotherapy. The theoretical orientation of most of our faculty is contemporary psychodynamic/psychoanalytic. The field of psychoanalytic psychotherapy has undergone a substantial evolution in recent years. The program presents the core of theory and technique that has endured through this evolution as well as relatively recent developments which have advanced theory and enlarged the range of application and effectiveness of psychoanalytic psychotherapy. The program consists of the conduct of psychotherapy with an adult caseload presenting with a broad range of diagnoses and issues, individual and group supervision, an extensive series of seminars on theory and technique, and case conferences. Focused training in eating disorders, in trauma and crisis intervention and in parenting skills development is available to interested postdoctoral fellows. Teaching and supervision are conducted by a small core faculty and a large group of mental health professionals on our Teaching and Supervisory Faculty. The training staff includes 2 full-time and 4 part-time psychologists and 40 mental health professionals in private practice who have appointments to WILA's Teaching and Supervisory Faculty. All faculty are licensed and experienced and most have specialty training in psychoanalytically oriented psychotherapy and psychoanalysis. Participation in the postdoctoral training program requires a Ph.D. or Psy.D. in Clinical or Counseling Psychology.

Program Description

The focus of the Postdoctoral Fellowship training program at Children's Hospital of Orange County (CHOC) is to provide advanced in-depth training in child/pediatric psychology and prepare individuals for careers in medical settings. The CHOC Fellowship offers specialized training in child clinical psychology applied in a general pediatric tertiary care setting. Postdoctoral Fellows are supervised by Psychology faculty who have expertise in child clinical psychology, as well as specialized interests in neuropsychology, pain management, disruptive behavior disorders, infant development, and sports psychology. The Program provides experience with consultation/liaison to sub-specialty pediatric units, neuropsychological assessment, and work in our outpatient Pediatric Psychology and ADHD Clinics. Postdoctoral fellows have an opportunity to specialize in our Early Intervention with Attention and Learning Disorders Program, which is jointly sponsored by the Department of Pediatrics, University of California, Irvine. The training program is housed within the Department of Health Psychology which provides comprehensive psychological services throughout the Children's Hospital. Post-Doctoral Fellows share some training experiences and seminars with interns in an APA accredited psychology internship as well as medical residents. Further, fellows have the opportunity to evaluate/consult/treat a wide variety of families from multicultural backgrounds. Fellows participate in research activities and complete a publishable paper during their fellowship.

Program Description

Children's Health Council (CHC) is a private, non-profit, multidisciplinary agency offering outpatient mental health and special education services to children with emotional, behavioral, and/or developmental problems. The patient population served by CHC ranges in age from infancy to early adulthood and includes the full span of socioeconomic levels, cultural groups, and range of clinical problems. CHC is affiliated with Stanford University Medical Center and Children's Hospital at Stanford acting as a primary training site for outpatient child psychiatric care and training. The CHC currently offers 2 one-year postdoctoral fellowships in child clinical psychology. The fellowship receives intensive training in psychodiagnostic assessment and treatment of children and families in a multidisciplinary setting. The postdoctoral fellowship follows the training guidelines of the APA as detailed by APPIC as well as Section 1 of Division 12 (Child Clinical Psychology). Each fellow spends approximately 50% of the time per week in direct clinical service (i.e., testing, psychotherapy, consultation) and 50% of the time in supervision, seminars, research activities, and various non-patient clinical meetings (e.g., case conferences, clinical rounds). Supervision and didactics are provided primarily by psychologists at Children's Health Council and clinical faculty members of Stanford University Medical School. Applicants from APA approved internship programs required.

Program Description

Application due dates vary by year and is not yet set for 2006, but will likely be toward the end of January, 2006. Please contact the Training Director for specific information. Applicants must be U.S. citizens and graduates of APA accredited internships and APA accredited doctoral programs in clinical or counseling Psychology. Dissertation must be completed to begin postdoctoral program. Extensive individual and group supervision are available in all settings. The Clinical Geropsychology Postdoctoral Fellowship involves training in all areas of Geropsychology Competency as described in the APA Proficiency. The goal is to complete the training with entry level competence in each of the areas, when prior internship and graduate training are taken into account. The Palliative Care/Hospice track involves training in the emerging competencies for Psychologists working in these areas. The Behavioral Medicine track provides training in all areas of competence defined as essential for expertise in Behavioral Medicine. The Psychosocial Rehabilitation track provides training in a recovery/rehabilitation approach to work with patients with serious mental illness. In addition, VA Palo Alto has clinical research postdoctoral positions at the Mental Illness, Research, and Education Center and research Fellowships at the Center for Healthcare Evaluation. The Training Director for the clinical programs can provide contact information for those positions.

Program Description

This fellowship offers three tracks: Forensic Psychology (2 positions), Advanced Clinical Psychology (2 positions) and Neuropsychology (2 positions). Request applications specific to the track desired. The forensic program provides training in the specialized practice of forensic psychology, including case and statutory law, use of specialized forensic assessment instruments, forensic reports, and expert testimony. Fellows will perform forensic evaluations and consultations both within the hospital and for agencies outside of the hospital, including the Superior Court and Department of Mental Health. Forensic evaluations include trial competency, criminal responsibility, sex offender evaluations, mentally disordered offender evaluations, and assessments of psychopathy and general risk and sex offender risk assessment. The advanced clinical program is designed for the fellow who has limited forensic experience, and would like to develop advanced skills in therapy and assessment, while working in a forensic setting. The clinical fellow will conduct intensive long-term individual psychotherapy and conduct psychological assessments focused on complex issues of treatment needs, diagnosis, and readiness for discharge.

Program Description

The program offers semi-rural community mental health training for clinical psychologists. Full-time positions include outpatient, community services. Three specialization tracks are offered. One in Youth and Family involves assessment, individual, group, and family therapy, community consultation, and psychoeducational day treatment of children and adolescents. Treatment settings and service responsibilities are negotiated but could include Adult and Youth Services, Substance Abuse, Community Programs, and exposure to a wide variety of symptoms and personality disorders. The specialization in Persistently Mentally Ill involves assessment, individual, family, group therapy, case management, court hearings, and consultation across a variety of treatment settings. The third is working with Dually Diagnosed clients, both adolescents and adults. Positions are funded for twelve months. Fellows work in multidisciplinary teams consisting of psychologists, MFCCs, social workers, community mental health workers, nurses, and psychiatrists. Minimum of six and one-half hours per week are devoted to didactic training and supervision, i.e., two hours of individual supervision, two hours of group supervision, two hours of training seminars, and treatment team meetings. An average of 20 hours per week is expected to be spent in direct patient contact.

Program Description

Our training program is designed for specialty training. One Fellow is selected for Child/Adolescent Psychology training and the other for Geropsychology training. The Child/Adolescent fellow provides clinical service to an inpatient population while the Geropsychology Fellow works with both an inpatient and partial hospitalization population. Fellows supervise interns in our APA accredited internship program. Our orientation is largely CBT. Training occurs in the hospital and in the local professional community.

Program Description

The fellowships areas of training emphasis are posttraumatic stress and substance abuse disorders. In both areas of emphasis, fellows will receive supervised experience in evaluation and assessment, psychological treatment, consultation, and interprofessional treatment planning. They will be given the opportunity to develop team leadership and clinical supervision skills. Up to six hours weekly may be devoted to conducting research under an assigned mentor. Fellows will attend three required advanced seminars and can select from numerous other educational offerings. The fellowship will satisfy post-doctoral supervised hour requirements for California licensure. While both fellows will receive didactic and clinical training in both areas of emphasis, one position features a Trauma Emphasis and one position has an Addiction Emphasis. You are welcome to apply for both, but you should indicate on the appropriate portion of your application which position is your first preference. Candidates must have completed an APA-approved internship and an APA-approved doctoral program prior to start of fellowship. The fellowship is APA accredited. Application deadline is January 28, 2006. Please download and review our fellowship brochure and fill out the downloaded application form at www.sf.med.va.gov/general.asp?durki=520. Program Description

Full Circle is committed to providing postdoctoral fellows with a relevant series of hands-on clinical experiences, with appropriate didactic instruction, consultation, and supervision. We are dedicated to the task of fostering professional growth, consistent with the guidelines of the California Psychology Internship Council, the California Board of Psychology, and the American Psychological Association. Each postdoctoral fellow will participate in: ~ Individual/group supervision ~ Clinical and psychological assessment ~ Individual diagnosis ~ Treatment planning ~ Direct therapeutic intervention ~ Empirically based techniques of individual, group, and family therapy ~ Medication planning/monitoring ~ Applied behavioral analysis ~ Consultation ~ Behavioral science research. Full Circle Programs is a California nonprofit mental health corporation with a three decade history of providing quality mental health services to children, youth, and families of the Bay Area. The postdoctoral training program focuses upon both specific and general topic areas. In order to function effectively and independently within the spectrum of Full Circle's programs of direct service, it is essential for all new professional members to complete a profile of specific trainings. These include such topics as: □ Cognitive-behavioral therapeutic intervention techniques for depression and anxiety disorders. □ Theory and Application of Parent-Child Interaction Therapy. □ Applied Behavioral Analysis and positive behavioral intervention techniques. □ Family systems and therapeutic intervention techniques. Our Community Counseling Services is a full-spectrum mental health clinic, serving the mental health needs of the Marin County community through its Terra Linda location. The clinic orientation is cognitive-behavioral and empirically validated.

Program Description

The Sycamores is committed to providing quality training for professionals wishing to specialize in child and adolescent assessment. During the course of the year, Postdoctoral Fellows will become skilled in the use of psychological, neuropsychological, and educational assessment instruments with youth. Fellows will become adept at working with youth at a variety of developmental and functional levels, including the Emotionally Disturbed (ED), and will become skilled diagnosticians. In addition, Fellows will develop proficiency in working with an interdisciplinary team and in aiding other professionals in the practical application of assessment information. Fellows will also provide consultation to interdisciplinary teams regarding the mental health needs of clients and aid in treatment planning. Opportunities for Fellows to participate in the training of clinical staff will also be available. Successful completion of the program will provide Fellows with 1500 hours of supervised postdoctoral experience that will satisfy the requirements of the State of California for licensure as a Psychologist.

Program Description

The post-doctoral training site is especially designed to train professionals who are interested in pursuing college mental health as their career focus. Fellows will receive excellent training in a variety of brief therapy modalities, carry several long-term cases for the year, and learn/respond to campus mental health needs through outreach, lectures, multidisciplinary team meetings, consultation with staff and outside mental health professionals, and involvement in community projects. Fellows will also receive solid training in crisis intervention, managing on-call coverage during the workday, further development of theoretical orientation, diversity issues and developmental issues in college/graduate life. The fellow's professional development is nurtured through individual and group supervision, fellows core seminars and process group, mentoring, consultation and being a part of a large multidisciplinary staff that is committed to training.

Program Description

The Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences at Stanford University School of Medicine offers: 1) clinic-funded fellowships for those planning careers in clinical service; and 2) NIMH-funded research fellowships for those preparing for academic careers. Clinical fellowships are currently available in the Behavioral Psychiatry Clinic, which specializes in treatment of anxiety, eating disorders, depression, chronic pain, insomnia, personality disorders, and couple and family problems; and the Child Psychiatry Clinic, which provides evaluation, assessment and treatment of children and adolescents. Clinical fellows spend approximately 75% time engaged in direct clinical activity, with the balance in supervision, case conferences, seminars, and research activity. Clinical fellowship appointments are full-time, for one year. However, fellows may apply for a second year of training at the midpoint of the academic year. NIMH-funded research fellowships are for two years. Research opportunities for NIMH fellows are in the following areas: depression, anxiety, eating disorders, sleep disorders, and developmental psychopathology. NIMH fellows spend at least 80% of their time in research-related activities, generally working with one primary faculty mentor. Our fellowships are open to PhDs and PsyDs from APA-accredited clinical or counseling psychology programs, who have completed APA-accredited internships. Our program is also open to candidates who have completed programs accredited by the Canadian Psychological Association. NIMH research fellowships are also open to MDs.

Program Description

The Institute of Living; Hartford Hospital's Mental Health Network offers Postdoctoral fellowship positions in (1) Clinical Neuropsychology, (2) Adult Inpatient Psychiatry, (3) Schizophrenia Rehabilitation, (4) Anxiety Disorders, (5) Child and Adolescent school-based treatment and assessment, (6) Child and Adolescent Outpatient treatment and assessment, (7) Health Psychology/ Behavioral Medicine, (8) Child/adolescent inpatient psychiatry, (9) Psychological Assessment. We offer a 2-year postdoctoral program in clinical neuropsychology. The first year is primarily spent in a psychiatric setting (Institute of Living), whereas the second year is primarily in a general medical/rehabilitative setting. Our program complies with APA Division 40, INS, and Houston Conference guidelines. All fellows will learn to administer, score, and interpret a wide range of neuropsychological and psychological tests using a flexible, process approach style. In addition, we have residency positions in the following areas: one position in our Schizophrenia Rehabilitation Program, using cognitive rehabilitation models and functional MRI; two positions in Adult Inpatient Psychiatry providing psychodynamically-informed brief individual, group, and family therapy and case-management; one position in our behavioral/exposure-based Anxiety Disorders Clinic; one position in school-based individual and group therapies, and assessment of children and adolescents; and one position in outpatient treatment of urban children and adolescents and psychological assessment. Health Psychology/Behavioral Medicine position includes inpatient consultation, cognitive assessment, and outpatient psychotherapy. Child/adolescent inpatient psychiatry involves advanced training in brief acute individual, group, and family therapies. The department is led by senior Psychologists who adhere to a scholar-practitioner model that actively integrates contemporary psychodynamic and cognitive-behavioral models.

Program Description

Applicants must apply to either the adult forensic, general adult or child tracks. Send materials in one packet (excluding official transcripts). The Program's training model is the Practitioner Apprenticeship Model which is characterized by learning by doing and refinement of clinical skills under the guidance and supervision of experienced practitioners. Trainees spend the majority of time (70%) in service delivery. Treatment settings include hospital and community mental health centers for the general adult track, hospital setting for the forensic track, and community mental health center for the child track. Trainees have significant input in tailoring programs to meet their needs/interests. Generally trainees spend 16-20 hours per week at a major rotation and 8-12 hours per week at a minor rotation. Training electives include: psychotherapy cases from various modalities, psychological assessment, leading seminars with psychology interns or psychiatric residents and/or clinical supervision of psychology interns. Qualified applicants must be a graduate of an APA-accredited doctoral program in clinical or counseling psychology and must have completed an APA-accredited internship prior to beginning the post-doc. Training period is 1-2 years.

Program Description

The program is a two-year postdoctoral fellowship in clinical neuropsychology. It is designed to produce an advanced level of competence in the specialty and to prepare graduates for board certification. Training is based on written objectives which fellows must meet for graduation. Approximately 50% of the fellow's time is spent in direct clinical services and 10-20% in research. Training activities include: (a) closely supervised training in neuropsychological assessment of adults; (b) organized didactic training in clinical neuropsychology; (c) medical school neurosciences course; (d) neurology and neurosurgery rounds; (e) case conferences, invited speakers, and outside educational activities. Currently all fellows are active duty military officers. Further information about the fellowship can be found on the Walter Reed Army Medical Center web page under the Department of Psychology.

Program Description

Florida International University is located in Miami, Florida. Florida International University is an urban multicultural/multiethnic academic institution with more than 32,000 students. This is a majority institution; 10% of our students are international. The training philosophy emphasizes treatment within the matrix of cultural differences. The professional staff is comprised of eight licensed psychologists and one licensed clinical social worker. The staff is from diverse ethnic and cultural backgrounds, and maintains a wide spectrum of theoretical and psychotherapeutic approaches. TRAINING FOCUS:- Population: Registered Florida International University students- Treatment Modalities: Outpatient Individual therapy, couples therapy, group therapy, crisis intervention, consultation/liaison and behavioral medicine. TREATMENT APPROACH: The center offers time-limited, focused psychotherapy. Treatment plans are individualized to reflect the cultural and developmental needs of the students. PHILOSOPHY OF TRAINING: The Counseling and Psychological Services Center stresses its strong commitment to training. The post-doctoral fellowship training program is designed to reflect the Association of Psychology Postdoctoral and Internship Center's (APPIC) guidelines. To attain this goal, the Fellow will be required to integrate theoretical, research, and ethical/legal issues in psychology into his/her conceptualization and provision of service delivery as a psychologist. TRAINING EXPERIENCES AND METHODS: SUPERVISION Supervision is based on a developmental approach to learning. Educational goals are individualized to integrate the Fellow's strengths and own interest with the CPSC clinical and research needs. Supervision will only be provided for clients seen at the Counseling Center.

Program Description

The Division of Psychology at UM/JMH is one of the largest clinical, training, and research psychology entities in the country. The Division is comprised of over 30 full-time doctoral level faculty including 6 with ABPP. Psychologists at this Medical Center are in an integral part of clinical practice, training, and research on the specialized units throughout the Medical Center. The UM school of Medicine and JMH are joined together to form the UM/JMH, which is centrally located on a 75-acre campus near downtown Miami. The Medical Center UM/JMH is comprised of 18 clinical, teaching, and research buildings housing approximately 1500 inpatient beds and 300 outpatient programs serving over 600,000 patients with 800,000 patient visits per year. The mission of the Medical Center is to provide a single high standard of health care, teaching and research.

Program Description

The Counseling & Psychological Services (CAPS) postdoctoral fellowship program is designed to develop advanced skills in the practice of clinical and counseling psychology. Our diverse faculty is able to provide training in multiple approaches in working with clients including: psychodynamic, humanistic, cognitive-behavioral, developmental, and multicultural. Fellows will have the opportunity to work with 14-18 clients in individual therapy per week as well as the opportunity to work with clients in a group. Concentrations within CAPS are available in the areas of eating disorders, mind/body approaches, assessment, and alcohol/drug. Additionally, each fellow will work 4-8 hours per week providing brief evaluation and crisis intervention in our walk-in counseling service. Opportunities to provide workshops, consultation, and educational programming are also available. Postdoctoral fellows will work in close collaboration with senior staff and will function as professionals with many of the same responsibilities. Fellows attend all case conferences, professional development workshops, and staff meetings.

Program Description

The program strives to provide exemplary training consistent with a scientist-practitioner model. The competency-based training is developmental and contextual in nature, and centered on the individual needs and goals of each fellow. While our expertise is in developing professional psychologists for leadership roles that combine clinical service, research, and education, our ultimate commitment is to helping fellows define, articulate, and progress towards their own chosen career path. Consistent with our individual focus, our program offers training in the following areas of emphasis. Pediatric Consultation and Liaison - Children's Healthcare of Atlanta: Opportunities to work in two private children's hospitals with youth with oncological and hematological disorders. Neuropsychological assessment opportunities are available. Adult Serious Mental Illness - Grady Health System: Direct clinical service, psychodiagnostic assessments, and clinical research on several units: Adult Day Treatment Program, Evaluation and Brief Treatment Unit, Intermediate Term Inpatient Unit, Partial Hospital Program, and Homelessness Program. Trauma Work - Grady Health System: Clinical work and clinical research with abused and traumatized adults, abused older adults, and with abused mothers and their children. Developmental Disabilities - Marcus Institute: Opportunities to work with children and adolescents with a broad array of developmental difficulties conducting both assessments and interventions. Women's Health - Grady Health System: Clinical research positions available to work on psychiatric obstetrics service, conduct intervention trials with suicidal women, and work on the trauma service. Rehabilitation and Neuropsychology - Department of Rehabilitation Medicine: Neuropsychological assessment, cognitive rehabilitation, and research. All positions include time for direct service, research and scholarship, the conduct of supervision, and professional development activities.

Program Description

The postdoctoral fellow will provide individual, group, and couples counseling in the Georgia Tech Counseling Center. This will be the sole location of the rotation. During the typical 40-hour work week, the postdoctoral fellow will be expected to provide 22 hours of face-to-face client contact. This contact will consist of intake hours, emergency walk-in duty, and individual, couples, and group counseling as well as psychological assessment if desired. The specific allotment of time to these areas will be determined by the needs of the postdoctoral fellow in consultation with his/her supervisor. Typically, a postdoc might lead one group per week (two hours), and may devote two to four hours to psychological assessment if that type of experience is desired. Opportunities to supervise practicum students are also provided. Part of the postdoc's responsibility includes co-facilitating a weekly training seminar for the practicum students in association with the training director. The remaining hours will be spent in maintaining case files, attending committee meetings, studying for the licensure exam, and participating in the general workings of the counseling center. In addition, the postdoctoral fellow is encouraged to perform some outreach to the Georgia Tech community. This will involve responding to requests by campus organizations as well as initiating outreach programs. The staff is diverse in theoretical orientation and includes cognitive behavioral, interpersonal, and systems centered, among others. The primary treatment modality is short-term (16 sessions), but some longterm opportunities are also available.

Program Description

The primary purpose of the Psychology Postdoctoral Training Program at RWSIR is to prepare fellows to function autonomously as licensed psychologists in a medical, rehabilitation, or vocational setting. While there is a neuropsychological component to the postdoc, it is designed as a postdoc in rehabilitation psychology. The experiences and training available are primarily clinical. The primary goal of the program is to provide more intensive and advanced training in the practice of psychology with medical and vocational rehabilitation patients in order that fellows will develop a professional identity that is appropriate for a psychologist working within a multidisciplinary treatment team environment. We encourage a collegial relationship between psychology staff and fellows, where the primary difference between the two is breadth and depth of knowledge and experience. Fellows are encouraged to assume clinical responsibilities at the level that their skills and experience allows. Psychologists at the Roosevelt Institute are committed to training and mentoring and are responsible for providing adequate supervision and to be accessible mentors for postdoctoral fellows. Fellows are provided with opportunities to serve both in the Medical Rehabilitation Unit (MRU) and the Vocational Rehabilitation Unit (VRU). They are required to work in each of the following three areas: 1) Neurological Rehabilitation Program, 2) Orthopedic Rehabilitation Program, and 3) Vocational Rehabilitation Unit. The fellow will provide psychotherapy and psychological assessment. The fellow will maintain a long-term therapy caseload and provide psychological assessment throughout the year in the VRU. In the MRU, the fellow will spend half the year in the Neurological Rehabilitation Program and half the year in the Orthopedic Rehabilitation Program. See <http://www.roosevelt-rehab.org/psychologypostdoc.asp> for a more detailed description.

Program Description

This Post-Doctoral Fellowship in Clinical Psychology is designed to provide education, supervised clinical experiences, research, and program development opportunities directly related to post-traumatic stress, with a focus on U.S. Veterans of war and their families. A special emphasis is additionally placed on ethnocultural factors in the understanding and treatment of trauma-related disorders among Native Hawaiian/Pacific Islanders, Asian Americans, and other culturally diverse groups. Other emphases include Active Duty military populations, non-combat trauma, women's health, use of telehealth technology, resilience, and early intervention/prevention intervention. The training is centered at the Pacific Islands Division of the National Center for PTSD. The Center provides comprehensive education on trauma-related disorders, including PTSD, acute stress disorder, child sexual abuse, complex trauma, and other comorbid disorders. A Fellow's typical training plan may include three days of clinical work, one day of research activities, and one day for didactics, individual supervision, and group supervision. Primary clinical activities take place at the Honolulu Veterans Affairs Medical Center. Secondary rotations may be available at neighbor island VA clinics, with Active Duty populations at Tripler Army Medical Center or local military bases, and with community populations at state mental health clinics. Applicants must be US citizens, and prior to beginning the Fellowship must have completed an APA-accredited doctoral program in clinical or counseling psychology and an APA-accredited predoctoral internship. The program length is one year. Inquiries should be emailed to Julia M. Whealin, Ph.D., Deputy Director for Education, at julia.whealin@med.va.gov, or mailed to the National Center for PTSD, 1132 Bishop Street, Suite 307, Honolulu, Hawaii 96813. Application materials become available in December.

Program Description

The Tripler post-doctoral fellowship in Clinical Psychology strives to provide each postdoctoral fellow with advanced training and specialty expertise. Working from a scientist-practitioner model, our two-year program is structured to produce psychologists who are capable of understanding, appreciating, and contributing to the scientific underpinnings of clinical practice. An intensive learning experience is provided through our core curriculum. The core curriculum includes workshops by Visiting Distinguished Professors, graduate-level training in psychopharmacology consistent with the APA Model Psychopharmacology Training Program, Ethics Seminar Series, weekly Core Seminars, and multi-specialty case conferences. Additionally, each fellow completes intensive specialty training in Clinical Health Psychology, Child/Pediatric Psychology or Clinical Neuropsychology. Fellows in each specialty area train to national standards if such are available. Tripler Army Medical Center is a major teaching hospital, with residency and fellowship programs in a variety of medical disciplines. Both Tripler and the co-located VA Medical Center have APA accredited predoctoral internship/residency programs, providing a rich environment for training and learning. Faculty of the Department of Psychology participate in ongoing programs of research in pediatric oncology, ADHD, telehealth, tobacco cessation, weight/pain management, biofeedback, memory disorders, virtual reality, etc. Fellows complete research of publishable quality in these or other areas of interest. Fellows receive training from faculty from various other disciplines including neurology, psychiatry, endocrinology, oncology, and pediatrics, and learn to work closely with physician colleagues.

Program Description

The Menta Group's postdoctoral fellowship in clinical psychology is intended for individuals who are interested in specialized training and experience in clinical administration. The program utilizes a three-tiered approach to prepare graduates for middle- to upper-level administrative positions in applied psychology. The first training tier serves as a bridge between each fellow's previous training experiences and the specialized practice of clinical administration. Fellows carry a clinical caseload (severe behavior disordered children and adolescents) and are introduced to the applied process of program design, implementation, and evaluation. In tier two, fellows develop advanced skill in the management and supervision of site-level employees, programs, projects, and systems. Working side by side with building administrators and administrative psychologists, fellows learn to move organizational goals and objectives forward at the site level. Tier three provides fellows with training experiences in clinical leadership and organizational strategy. This final segment demands broad organizational perspective and the ability to envision the change process on a system-wide basis. Within this tier, fellows learn to effectively evaluate and manage the issues that arise when overseeing multiple clinical programs and sites. The Menta Group is a mental health and educational organization with facilities in Illinois, Arizona, and Washington. Within Illinois, Menta operates four therapeutic day schools, three technical high schools, two group homes, and a variety of community-based therapeutic services. Preference is given first to interns in The Menta Group's current pre-doctoral training class and then to individuals who have graduated from APA accredited universities or professional schools and have completed APA accredited internships.

Program Description

The program subscribes to the APPCN Resident Matching Program (Code 9882) and is supported by the departments of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences and the Cognitive Neurology and Alzheimer's Disease Center at Northwestern University Medical School. Neuropsychology also has a graduate level training program within the Clinical Psychology division at the medical school. This provides opportunities for teaching and clinical supervision of graduate students. The goal of training is to provide fellows with advanced skills in clinical evaluation and diagnosis and in short-term treatment aimed at patient and caregiver education; to provide research opportunities; to provide teaching and supervision opportunities with graduate students and visiting scholars. A pervasive theme within the program is the importance of multidisciplinary cooperation at all levels - clinical, research, and academic. To this end, neuropsychology fellows participate in joint academic and research activities with fellows and staff from other disciplines, including neurology, psychiatry, social work, and neuroscience. One to two postdoctoral fellowships in clinical neuropsychology are offered annually or every two years depending on availability of funding. Clinical responsibilities consist of inpatient evaluations of adults with a range of disorders including dementia, stroke, epilepsy, neoplasm, traumatic brain injury and psychiatric disorders. Outpatient experience in a multidisciplinary clinical/academic unit specializing in behavioral neurology and dementia. Research areas include Alzheimer's disease and other dementias (primary progressive aphasia, frontotemporal dementia), aging, attention, and language. Opportunities to work with the Human Brain Mapping group using functional magnetic resonance imaging are available. Direct supervision is provided by Sandra Weintraub, PhD, Robert Hanlon, PhD, Nancy Johnson, PhD, and Brenda Hanna-Pladdy, PhD. See website: www.brain.northwestern.edu.

Program Description

Connection's Day School is a private therapeutic day school, established in 1998. We service high-risk students, ages 8-21 years, from various Lake County school districts. Our students struggle with emotional, behavioral and learning challenges. We utilize educational, therapeutic, family and community connections to promote academic achievement and personal/emotional growth. We require highly-motivated individuals, who have experience working with challenging young people, and are interested in being an active part of our dynamic clinical staff. Please contact Dr. Pollina to receive more detailed information about Connection's Day School and the Post-Doctoral Fellowship Program.

Program Description

Correctional Psychology Training Program ' Dixon Correctional Center Dixon Correctional Center (DCC) is the primary mental health facility for the Illinois Department of Corrections. This all adult-male population is quite diverse regarding ethnicity, culture, religion, education, mental and medical health needs. In addition to General Population which houses approximately 1500 inmates, DCC has specialized housing programs which include: the Special Treatment Center (STC) which houses approximately 550 inmates; Dixon Psychiatric Unit (DPU) which houses approximately 210 inmates; and, the Hospice Unit which houses over 40 inmates. Training Rotations The Post Doctoral Resident will participate in three distinct four month training rotations at this facility, specifically: STC, medium security, which houses both mentally ill and developmentally disabled inmates; DPU, maximum security, which houses mentally ill inmates in general population and segregation; and, General Population, which includes the Hospital and Hospice Unit. In coordination with a multidisciplinary team, treatment is provided via multiple modalities including: rounds, treatment planning, medication management, brief individual therapy, and group therapy. On an as needed basis, assessment batteries are performed to determine differential diagnoses and treatment interventions. Post Doctoral Duties- formal supervision of Interns & Practicum students The Correctional Psychology Training Program provides comprehensive mental health assessments services. The intern will:-conduct group therapy, individual therapy and crisis intervention; -provide psychological screening of offenders;-provide psychological Testing to evaluate the emotional, behavioral or interpersonal difficulties, to determine differential diagnosing; and, to develop a comprehensive treatment plan; and-provide training sessions or workshops on topics related to mental health for facility staff.

Program Description

The Lovick C. Miller Fellowship in Pediatric/Clinical Child Psychology allows the postgraduate fellow to develop an individually tailored experience in a multidisciplinary pediatric and child psychiatric setting. Clinical populations available include outpatient children and adolescents seen through the facilities of the Bingham Child Guidance Center, the fourth oldest such facility in the country (established in 1913). This includes individual and group therapy with youth as well as parent involvement through group and individual modalities. Extensive experience is available with pediatric patient populations via the Pediatric Consultation-Liaison Service with Kosair Children's Hospital, the Frazier Rehabilitation Institute and other area hospitals in the U of L HSC system. Patients with chronic illness and serious medical problems (cystic fibrosis, childhood cancer including bone marrow transplantation, chronic fatigue syndrome, fibromyalgia, juvenile diabetes, heart transplantation, traumatic injury, brain injury, burns, etc.) are routinely seen on this service, with opportunity for outpatient involvement. Patients with more severe psychopathology are seen through both the Keller Partial Hospitalization Program and the Ackerly Child and Adolescent Psychiatric Inpatient Service. Clinical experiences include assessment and therapy from a variety of modalities and case consultation with primary care and specialty health care providers. Fellows participate in individual and group supervision, seminars, case conferences, and service rounds. Approximately 20% of the fellow's time is allocated for research, and a number of ongoing projects are accessible for involvement. The multiple facilities of the University of Louisville Health Sciences Center, Norton/Kosair Health Care System, and the Bingham Child Guidance Center provide state-of-the-art resources for the training program.

Program Description

* LAST YEAR'S INFORMATION - CONTACT PROGRAM FOR CURRENT INFORMATION * The Postdoctoral Fellowship Program in Pediatric Psychology is designed to provide trainees with assessment and therapy experiences that are consistent with the professional expectations of a pediatric/child clinical psychologist. The goals of the fellowship are to familiarize the trainee with pediatric populations, to introduce assessment and therapy techniques that are relevant to and adapted for the acutely or chronically ill child. The fellowship is also designed to provide experience working with child and adolescent outpatient populations and their families, and to promote professional development through experience within an interdisciplinary model. A mentoring model of training is followed and consists of assigning the Fellow to one primary supervisor for the entire year, with additional supervision provided by staff involved in the trainee's specialty rotations. In addition to verbal feedback, training will consist of observation and modeling from staff in clinical settings. Fellows will receive at least two hours of individual supervision and one hour of group supervision on a weekly basis throughout the fellowship year. The supervision provided meets post-doctoral supervision requirements for licensure by APPIC and the Louisiana State Board of Examiners of Psychologists. A competitive stipend is provided for the 12-month fellowship position. The hospital also provides a full benefits package for the fellow. Applicants should send a letter stating their interests and goals, a current vita, and 3 letters of recommendation.

Program Description

The TUHSC postdoctoral program offers broad focused training in assessment and consultation with inpatients and outpatients. Patient population is 70% adult and 30% children/adolescent; 60% physician referred and 40% forensic (civil). Follow-up treatment (individual and couples psychotherapy) is very possible. Close involvement with faculty from Neurology Division at the clinical, didactic, and case conference levels. The assessment approach is a fixed eclectic battery, encompassing standard measures of each of the broad areas of neurobehavioral functioning. There is a new opportunity to consult (assessment and behavioral medicine) at the Tulane Oncology Center, with a patient focus on brain tumors, effects of radiotherapy and chemical therapy, and organ transplants. Additionally, a new program for epilepsy surgery is currently in place and will offer the chance for the postdoctoral fellow to be actively involved in consultation, assessment, follow-up, and treatment. The primary focus of this program is comprehensive assessment and forensic (civil) neuropsychology. There are a variety of ongoing research projects ranging from the investigation of dissimulation in litigation patients to functional neuroimaging.

Additional Information About Training Opportunities

The PTSD/SMI resident may train in the PTSD Day Treatment Program, the Mental Health Clinic, and the Mental Health Intensive Case Management Program. The Geriatric Neuropsychology resident may train in the Neuropsychology Clinic, Nursing Home Care Units, and Spinal Cord Injury Clinic.

Program Description

We offer scientist-practitioner, competency-based, clinical psychology training, with a rural emphasis. We aim to train ethically grounded, culturally aware generalists who can thoughtfully apply empirically-supported psychological assessment, treatment, and consultation skills for the benefit of persons and organizations, particularly within a rural environment. From this generalist foundation, we offer advanced postdoctoral training in Clinical Psychology, with emphases in PTSD/Serious Mental Illness and Geriatric Neuropsychology. Training consists of 2080 hours with concurrent training experiences in at least three different treatment settings. We are located on spacious wooded grounds five miles east of Augusta, the state capital of Maine. The PTSD/Serious Mental Illness emphasis position represents a one year appointment. The Geriatric Neuropsychology emphasis position normally involves reappointment for a second year, and is thus only open every other year. Please note that we DO anticipate a neuropsychology position opening for the 2006-2007 training year.

Additional Information About Training Opportunities

Applied Behavior Analysis, Developmental Disabilities, Behavioral Pediatrics, Pediatric Feeding Disorders, Pervasive Developmental Disorders, Autism, Inpatient and Outpatient, and Family Therapy.

Program Description

The Department of Behavioral Psychology provides clinical services to a variety of pediatric populations with learning, behavioral and developmental disabilities. The Department's philosophy is that the principles and procedures of behavioral science form the basis for effective and ethical clinical services. Fellows typically elect to develop their expertise through advanced training in one or two clinical services under the direction of an identified mentor(s). Specific training opportunities include hospital consultation in severe behavior disorders, family therapy, pervasive developmental disorders/autism, and pediatric feeding disorders in both outpatient and inpatient programs. Research participation is strongly encouraged and typically integrated into clinical experience. Fellows have the opportunity to work with their mentor to tailor the training experiences to meet their needs with regard to clinical, supervisory, research, and didactic training.

Program Description

The scientist-practitioner training philosophy of the postdoctoral program involves an integration of professional activity and training from four primary domains: clinical; program development and administration; supervision and teaching; and research. All residents train in the provision of psychotherapy supervision to practicum students, provide both individual and group psychotherapy, engage in clinical research, actively become involved in program development and administration, and present professional development and didactic seminars for psychology interns and hospital staff. The resident is afforded considerable flexibility regarding training experiences and clinical focus within each of the four domains. The residency program offers four positions within three areas of emphasis: #61608; Center for Integrative Psychotherapy (2 positions): In collaboration with the Director of Training, the two residents will assume primary administrative and program development responsibility within the Center. Within this role, the resident will be free to pursue their individual clinical and research interests. #61608; Interdisciplinary Psychosocial Rehabilitation: Within this residency position, the resident will become part of an interdisciplinary team of post-graduate fellows (including psychology, psychiatry, social work and nursing). Over the course of the year, the fellows will train within two primary psychosocial rehabilitation venues, and will also become actively involved in research and educational dissemination activities. #61608; Neuropsychology: Within this residency position, the resident will assume a lead role with regard to supervision and mentoring of neuropsychology interns as well as administration and program development activities within the Memory Disorders Clinic. The resident will also spend one full day per week at the Alzheimer's Disease Center, where a range of research opportunities and clinical work are available.

Program Description

All requirements (clinical, academic, administrative) for the doctoral degree must be completed prior to September 1st and verified before July 1, 2006. Training Programs: The Consortium offers postdoctoral training in the following areas: (1) Geropsychology (1 year); (2) Neuropsychology (2 years) (Specialty Area); (3) PTSD - Primary Research Focus (2 years); (4) PTSD - Primary Clinical Focus (1 year); (5) Substance Abuse (1 Year); (6) Child Psychology (1 Year); (7) Medical Psychology (Behavioral Health) (1 Year). Note: Not all programs are offered each year (see current Training Brochure for information and availability). Philosophy and Mission: The mission of the Postdoctoral Fellowship Training Program of the Boston Consortium in Clinical Psychology is to produce independently functioning psychologists. Our model for training entails four core components: (1) To identify, respect, and nurture the unique personal attributes that the Fellow brings to his or her work with patients, by providing an environment with support and guidance through supervision and collaboration with faculty actively working in the field; (2) To encourage and model a scientist-practitioner approach to professional psychology, wherein empirically-informed knowledge informs psychological assessment and intervention with children and adults and wherein questions arising from clinical practice drive research endeavors; (3) To provide a range of training settings and experiences that allow Fellows to develop a breadth of expertise in psychological practice, as well as options for developing more specific interests in depth; (4) to provide training in multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary care environments in which the Fellow develops confidence as a local mental health expert who collaborates effectively with a range of providers in the context of a large medical care system. We are an Equal Opportunity Employer committed to excellence through diversity.

Program Description

The Mental Health Service of the Harvard University Health Services offers full-time post-doctoral fellowships in clinical or counseling psychology to start September 1. The multidisciplinary staff of more than thirty clinicians serves an interesting population of students, staff, faculty and their family members. All students are eligible for services, as are those faculty and staff members (and their dependents) who select Harvard University Group Health Plan (HUGHP) as their HMO. The staff is augmented by a cadre of consultants who are available to provide additional supervision. Supervision in dynamic psychotherapy and cognitive/behavioral therapy (either or both) is provided. Training opportunities in couples and group therapy may also be elected. Diagnostic testing maybe a small part of the training experience. Sixty percent of the Fellow's week is direct patient care, the majority of which is short-term therapy. Some long-term therapy cases may be available. The remainder of time in the fellowship is comprised of supervision and seminars with different modules addressing adolescence, short-term psychotherapy, eating disorders, diversity and boundary issues. There is a weekly lecture series of invited professionals from the Greater Boston mental health community. While there may be only two psychology Fellows in any given year, there is a sizable trainee group comprised of part-time psychiatric residents and social work fellows. This program began more than 30 years ago and is not APA-accredited. Please remit the following information by January 2nd to Maureen Rezendes, Ph.D.: curriculum vita, letter of interest, letters of recommendations from three current or recent supervisors, a letter from a faculty member outlining your current status in your doctoral program, and an original transcript.

Program Description

The Clinical Psychology Training Program prepares Post-Doctoral Fellows in Psychology to understand and treat persons suffering with a broad spectrum of emotional distress. Using a scholar-practitioner model, our curriculum emphasizes a biopsychosocial approach to the understanding of people and values the use of psychotherapy and assessment. With close faculty-trainee interaction, we provide a solid grounding in treatment and assessment that takes into account ethnic and cultural influences. We also teach Fellows to integrate a variety of treatment modalities while working with persons with an array of psychological problems, including persons diagnosed with major mental illness and severe personality disorders. A distinctive feature of our program is that Psychology Fellows can pursue a wide variety of individual specialty interests in the context of a Fellowship program that emphasizes growth as a professional clinical psychologist. All Fellows meet together weekly in a Professional Development Seminar, which includes such topics as providing supervision, teaching in both medical and academic settings, writing for publication, obtaining grants and conducting research, licensing procedures and legal and ethical issues for the psychologist. Fellows are evaluated by supervisors and training directors twice yearly, and the program follows the Cambridge Health Alliance's due process and grievance procedures. There are currently seven different Psychology Fellowship options available. They are: 1. Neuropsychology (Adult and/or Child) 2 yr outpatient; 2. Clinical Psychology (Behavioral Medicine Clinic); 3. Clinical Psychology (Child /Adolescent Inpatient Services); 4. Clinical Psychology (Couples and Family Clinic); 5. Clinical Psychology (Cultural-linguistic Clinics: Latino, Portuguese, Asian or Haitian); 6. Clinical Psychology (Program for Psychotherapy) 2 year requirement; 7. Clinical Psychology (Victims of Violence Program).

Program Description

The fellowship is designed to provide postdocs with a training experience that is first, concentrated on deepening their diagnostic and clinical skills, and second, representative of university mental health practice today. We are a relatively large counseling service, highly utilized on this campus of over 14,000 students. In this setting fellows are actively engaged in the varied roles and functions of our work: evaluation and treatment of students; crisis and emergency response; consultation; and outreach programming. Boston College students are diverse and talented. At an institutional level, BC is invested in the integration of students' intellectual development with their personal formation. This makes for a psychologically rich population with which a postdoc can explore closely and intensively the practice of psychotherapy. A fellow's clinical work and individual supervision, which are the core of his/her training, are embedded in the more encompassing experience of being part of a clinical staff that is committed and thoughtful in its work. In formulating client difficulties, we emphasize psychodynamic, developmental, and culturally sensitive approaches. Formal training functions include individual supervision (3 hrs weekly); case conference; a case-based seminar in culturally competent practice; a professional practice seminar; and administrative participation. There are several distinct features of this advanced training experience: fellows normally 1) advance their formulation and treatment-planning skills significantly; 2) they learn psychotherapy process with a particular class of clients who are high-functioning while also very troubled diagnostically; and 3) they develop a practical understanding of the intersections of psychopathology with developmental forces. This is an eleven-month fellowship. We have trained postdoctoral psychologists for over 13 years, and as a university service, have a history of longevity, stability and growth.

Program Description

The Austen Riggs Center is a JCAHO-accredited not-for-profit private psychiatric hospital and residential treatment center with 72 patients and 24 full-time Ph.D. and M.D. staff. Situated on Main St. in the Berkshire Hills town of Stockbridge, the Center has maintained an open setting for over 85 years in which patients collaborate in all aspects of treatment. A psycho-social treatment model, drawing on the work done at Riggs by Erik Erikson and other psychoanalysts, includes four times weekly intensive psychotherapy, groups, medication, activities, and family work in the context of an active therapeutic community of examined living. A full range of assessment, including diagnostic psychological testing, is provided to each patient. At least ten hours per week are devoted to seminars, supervision, and case conferences. Research opportunities are available and presentations at national meetings are encouraged and fully supported. We offer a 2-year post-doctoral Fellowship and an additional 2-year Advanced Fellowship, with benefits such as health and life insurance, annual vacation, and 2 years of psychoanalysis. We require a doctoral degree from an APA-approved program and APA-approved completed internship.

Program Description

YEAR ONE: Clinical practice and consultation in primary care - Seven half-days per week. The fellow spends the majority of his or her time as a member of primary care treatment team in one of the family practice residency clinics. This involves observing resident physicians in their practice, seeing patients jointly with physicians, and carrying a caseload referred by physicians in the practice. Program for School Aged Children ' One half-day per week. This is a family therapy oriented brief assessment and treatment clinic located in the Department of Pediatrics at UMass Medical Center. Faculty members are Dr. Blount and Dr. Braden. It serves children aged 5-12 and their families. Behavioral Medicine practice ' One half-day per week. Working in practice with Dr. Blount at Hahnemann Family Health Center in Worcester. This half day is "open clinic" when patients can come without appointments. Team Precepting ' One half-day per week. fTeam precepting$ is a process in which a medical faculty member and a behavioral science faculty member work together with a resident who sees a regular half-day of patients in front of the one-way glass. Seminar in Primary Care Psychology - Fellows, joined by other psychology trainees or mental health staff, take a weekly seminar in Primary Care Psychology taught by Dr. Blount with occasional guest lecturers. YEAR TWO: Clinical practice and consultation in primary care - Seven half-days per week. As in the first year, the fellow spends the majority of his or her time as a member of a primary care treatment team in a family practice residency clinic. There is special emphasis on consultation to help residents care for patients that they would have referred before and on developing population-based clinical care. Teaching and consultation at a Family Health Center ' One day per week. Fellow's research ' One half-day per week.

Program Description

Our Post-Doctoral Fellowship is a twelve-month, full-time experience, with the possibility of renewal for a second year. (Full Michigan licensure requires 4000 post-doctoral hours.) Our curriculum provides advanced training and clinical experience in multiculturally sensitive services to university students with a wide range of developmental issues and mental health concerns. Our practitioner-scholar training program offers hands-on experience, complemented by access to and knowledge of relevant psychological science. Within the context of our multicultural, multidisciplinary, and multi-theoretical setting, our aim is to support entry-level professionals as they get ready for licensure, and to prepare them to move with competence, creativity and flexibility into professional positions in a range of settings, with a focus on counseling centers. Post-Doctoral Fellows will provide service in: Individual therapy, both brief and longer when appropriate; Crisis intervention; and Consultation. Post-Doctoral Fellows may also provide service in: Outreach and consultation; Group interventions (structured, semi-structured or process groups); and Supervision of practicum students. Post-Doctoral Fellows will also choose an area of specialization. Examples include but are not limited to: 1. Administration (clinical, training, or outreach); 2. Clinical Practice (anxiety; depression; eating disorders; multicultural counseling; or sexual assault; etc.); 3. Assessment (intervention-focused assessment of eating disorders, substance use, personality issues, symptom severity/change, client satisfaction); 4. Outreach (to specific campus communities and/or general); or 5. Clinical Scholarship/Writing. Additional program information and learning supports are described on our web site: www.umich.edu/~caps

Program Description

Our two-year training program is fully APA-accredited and based on the scientist-practitioner model. It prepares psychologists for academic careers or positions of leadership in clinical and educational settings. The program consists of a core professional development curriculum and graduated research and clinical training experiences in one of three areas of emphasis: Clinical Adult Psychology, Clinical Child Psychology, and Clinical Neuropsychology. The core curriculum exposes fellows to cutting edge topics in psychology and health care, and enhances fellows' understanding of medical/legal issues, ethical dilemmas, career development, grant writing skills, and sensitivity to cultural diversity. The Adult Clinical Psychology track focuses on depression, anxiety, and clinical outcome, and emphasizes scientific behaviorism and learning theory. Fellows are expected to become knowledgeable about and to employ empirically-supported interventions for the treatment of self-management and self-regulation disorders, anxiety, depression, and various other psychiatric conditions. The Clinical Child Psychology track emphasizes the developmental and social contexts of child psychopathology, and the use of empirically validated assessments and interventions. Fellows gain expertise in diagnosis, assessment, and treatment of children with a wide range of psychological difficulties. They also participate in clinical research and prepare to function as independent, programmatic researchers. The Neuropsychology area is a member of the Association of Postdoctoral Programs in Clinical Neuropsychology and participates in the match process for matching applicants. This track provides advanced training in the application of knowledge of brain-behavior relationships and Clinical Psychology for the benefit of patients suffering from disorder, disease, or injury to the central nervous system. It will prepare fellows for eventual board certification in Clinical Neuropsychology.

Program Description

As the first program in the nation to be specialty accredited in Clinical Health Psychology by the American Psychological Association (APA), we are pleased to offer a 24 month long postdoctoral residency in association with Michigan State University/Flint Area Medical Education (MSU/FAME) and the three area affiliated teaching hospitals - Genesys Regional Medical Center, Hurley Medical Center, and McLaren Regional Medical Center. Within each of these institutions consortium faculty and fellows provide clinical and didactic teaching to a variety of medical residency training programs, medical student programs, and allied health programs. Consistent with experts in the field of health psychology, the residency works toward the goal of training professional psychologists in general knowledge and skills as well as specific proficiencies and competencies. The common training elements of the residency programs include: Group Supervision (2 hrs./week), Individual Supervision, a year long Psychopharmacology curriculum, a Pathophysiology course, a Seminar Series (3 hrs./week), Continuing Medical Education lectures, Grand Rounds, noon conferences, and visiting guest lecturers. Upon graduation, fellows are ready to assume leadership roles in Clinical Health Psychology and medical education. Their training prepares them to be effective collaborators with physicians and allied health personnel, to understand the culture and language of medicine, to be able to design and implement effective education programs which incorporate sound psychological constructs.

Program Description

Our training program follows a Scholarship/Practitioner model with an emphasis on mentoring and self-directed development, and training which provides both breadth with depth. We emphasize a scholarly approach to clinical work and an integration of scientific data into the varied training experiences. Fellows may choose up to two areas of special emphasis including Health Psychology, Rehabilitation Psychology, Neuropsychology, and/or Serious Mental Disorders. Training in Health Psychology focuses on the application of psychological theory and research to the prevention, assessment, and treatment of physical illness and the promotion and maintenance of health. Training in Rehabilitation Psychology focuses on the practice of assisting individuals with disabilities in achieving optimal psychological, physical, and social functioning. Training in neuropsychology focuses on brain-behavior relationships. Fellows will gain proficiencies in neuropsychological assessment techniques and instruments, interpretation of test results, report writing, and selected methods of intervention. Training in severe mental disorders focuses on the evaluation and treatment of psychopathology to enhance quality of life. Training emphasizes the multifaceted nature of complex mental disorders.

Additional Information About Training Opportunities

The opportunities are different for each of the two fellowship opportunities. The human sexuality fellowship is more specific to assessment and treatment of sexual dysfunctions and disorders; the behavioral medicine fellowship is more general dealing with general mental health.

Program Description

We have two different postdoctoral fellowships. One is in human sexuality and the other is in behavioral medicine. There is opportunity for some fellows to have a split fellowship if desired. This is a two-year full-time fellowship with an outstanding faculty and extensive supervision provided. The emphasis is on clinical experience and training, however there is a required research or scholarly project requirement as well. The human sexuality fellowship is offered through the Center for Sexual Health which is an outpatient clinic which treats a variety of sexual disorders and dysfunctions (average 1000 patient visits per month). This is an ideal fellowship for someone who is interested in developing a career in sex therapy, teaching and research or adding this specialization to their training and experience. Our patients have a number of comorbid Axis I and Axis II diagnoses, so there is ample opportunity to learn to manage a myriad of psychiatric problems as well as treatment of sexual dysfunctions and disorders. The Program in Human Sexuality is one of the premier sexuality programs in the country with an internationally renowned faculty. The behavioral medicine fellowship is offered through one or two of our family practice clinics which are training sites for family practice residents. The Department of Family Medicine and Community Health is one of the largest departments in the country with a very strong behavioral medicine emphasis. This is an excellent opportunity to be involved in behavioral medicine in a busy outpatient family practice clinic serving an ethnically diverse and urban client population. The fellows are also involved in the behavioral medicine teaching component of the residency training program.

Program Description

Please see our website www.avapl.org for more detailed information and application instructions. The philosophy of training at the KCVAMC is best described as a "scholar-practitioner" model. The training experiences have a strong clinical focus. However, knowledge and use of empirically supported processes and interventions are expected and encouraged in all aspects of the program. At the end of the program, residents will be prepared to function autonomously as practicing clinical or counseling psychologists in a broad range of applied, teaching, and research settings. Applicants must have completed an APA accredited doctoral program in clinical or counseling psychology, including an APA accredited internship, prior to the residency start date. We especially encourage applications from students with knowledge and experience in diversity issues. Applicants are required to have a strong interest in mental health issues and treatment with long-term goals to provide service and contribute to this area in psychology. In addition, residents must be interested in studying and utilizing different theoretical orientations in their clinical work including cognitive, psychodynamic, and existential-humanistic. Candidates must be citizens of the United States.

Program Description

The mission of the postdoctoral residency is to provide a structured training program designed to develop advanced competency in clinical practice and provide research and program evaluation. The resident will be required to spend part of their time in specific research and program evaluation activities and part in providing direct services. The primary theoretical orientation of Burrell clinicians is cognitive-behavioral, but most would describe themselves as eclectic. Clinical area options include medical psychology; child or adult treatment in inpatient and/or outpatient environments. Burrell, Inc. is an affiliate of CoxHealth and is a state-of-the-art community mental health center.

Program Description

In early 2002, the Federal Bureau of Prisons (BOP) launched a new treatment program for personality disordered offenders. A Post-Doctoral Fellowship provides the opportunity to participate in the expansion, provision, and evaluation of this relatively new program. Inmates referred to the program are typically the most troublesome in the system, due to long histories of self-injurious behavior, suicide attempts, emotional instability, excessive demands for staff time, poor interpersonal skills, protective custody needs, substance abuse, angry outbursts, impulsivity, and sexual promiscuity. The Axis II Program is the first of its kind in the BOP. Although located at a medical center, patients are not psychiatric inpatients. Rather, they participate in a program which primarily uses cognitive-behavioral principles, with a foundation in Dialectical Behavior Therapy (DBT). Typical treatment goals include reducing self-injurious behavior, suicide attempts, the need for medical care, emotional instability, demands on staff time, time in special housing units, and disciplinary problems. The purpose is to make the inmates more manageable for staff and to improve the quality of life for the inmates by teaching new skills and coping strategies. Postdoctoral fellows would be involved in all aspects of the program, including program development, management and treatment of patients, supervision, case consultation, crisis intervention, case consultation, report writing, and research.

Program Description

Apply for one of three clinical tracks: 1) Anxiety Disorders Center, 2) Health Psychology, or 3) Psychology and Religion Program. Anxiety disorders work is done primarily in the context of a cognitive behavioral intensive outpatient program for people with severe anxiety disorders. The Health Psychology resident trains in a primary care medicine practice affiliated with St. Louis University Health Sciences Center, screening medical patients for psychological issues, consulting with medical and support staff, providing staff education, triaging patients, and providing short term psychotherapeutic interventions including health behavior promotion. Residents in the Psychology and Religion track work primarily in an intensive outpatient program doing assessment and therapy with religious professionals. Appointments are for 1 year with possible renewal for an additional year. In general, training in most programs follows a clinical preceptorship model with two hours of individual supervision per week, plus seminars and group/peer supervision. Requirements include APA-accredited doctorate degree and internship completed. Submit application form and send 3 letters of reference, copies of relevant publications, CV, and graduate transcript. Application forms and program description may be found at www.slbmi.com. Application deadline February 15; selections made by March 15 or until filled. Program Description

The Clinical Psychology Residency program focuses on learning the supervision and management of mental health patients, staff, finances, and facilities. Further learning in psychometrics, diagnostics, evaluations, and intervention continue to be a strong part of the training experience. This is a 2 year position. The Child and Family Residency Program prepares psychologists to work within a systemic perspective. This slot prepares residents to work within a multidisciplinary team of psychologists, family physicians, pediatricians, health and human service workers and school personnel. Opportunities exist to work clinically within integrated facilities and in rural communities. This is a 2 year position. The Medical Psychology/Psychopharmacology position is a position developed to train residents at APA LEVEL III Psychopharmacology/Prescriptive Authority and eligibility for The Academy of Medical Psychology. The resident will complete The Psychopharmacology Institute coursework, practicum, and preceptorship while continuing to develop skills in the applications of this knowledge in clinical, medical and health psychology. The residency requires 3 years to complete. The Forensic Psychology Residency program is designed for board eligibility as well. The program is 2-3 years and residents can complete the MLS degree via the University of Nebraska College of Law. Other didactics are also required. Evaluation, consultation and expert witness work will be conducted for both civil and criminal legal cases. Sites of evaluations include the office at NMHC, Nebraska State Correctional Facilities, Lancaster County facilities, Family, County, and District Court.

Program Description

Postdoctoral training is offered in several specialty areas: neuropsychology and brain imaging; pediatric neuropsychology; health psychology/behavioral medicine; pain management; and integration of behavioral medicine into primary care. In each appointment, emphasis is put on professional development through teaching and research opportunities, advanced seminar work, intensive individual supervision, and inter-disciplinary collaboration. Each fellow negotiates with the training director for an individual program which balances these learning experiences. For those interested in neuropsychology, please see our website at: synapse.hitchcock.org. For information on the pediatric neuropsychology program, contact Art Maerlender at: Arthur.C.Maerlender.Jr@Dartmouth.EDU. For those interested in behavioral medicine, specialty tracks include anxiety disorder service, integration into primary care, and pain management within the multidisciplinary Spine Center at DHMC. Program Description

Neuropsychology Postdoctoral Fellowship training at Montefiore Medical Center is based on the integrated model of specialty training that was advanced at the Houston Conference and endorsed by the ABPP and APPCN. In this model, the two-year fellowship is seen as a time to extend specialty preparation in science and professional practice in clinical neuropsychology. Our fellows gain experience in assessment, treatment, consultation, and research with a varied population of neurologically and psychiatrically ill patients. Training seminars, didactics, individual/group supervision and case conferences supplement and enhance direct clinical care experience. One of the distinguishing characteristics of training in an academic medical center, such as Montefiore, is the variety of patients who present for treatment. We offer inpatient and outpatient care for patients with a wide variety of psychiatric and neurologic conditions and we have many specialty clinics to serve these patients better. As neuropsychologists, fellows have the opportunity to work with other disciplines, reflecting the multi-faceted nature of health and illness, and the necessity for multiple sources of assistance in the hospital and community. We have funding for 2 Fellowship positions with a stipend of $35,000 per year, plus benefits, with a two-year commitment. The start date for the Fellowship is September 1, 2006. The clinical experiences, comprising 60% of the fellows' time, occur on the inpatient wards, in community treatment settings, and in outpatient clinics. Research, representing 40% of the fellows' time, occurs on-site, at satellite clinics, and in the community. We also place great emphasis on supervision, representing at least 3 hours per week (2 hours individual supervision, 1 hour group supervision), with faculty specializing in various aspects of clinical neuropsychology.

Program Description

Two year intensive scientist-practitioner training experience within a rehabilitation research setting of a large urban medical center. Fellows will become members of a multidisciplinary research team working in a NIDRR funded Research and Training Center on TBI Interventions. Opportunity include collaboration with the team to develop, implement, evaluate and disseminate clinical rehabilitation research. Primary research focused on two RTCs: one in a study of group cognitive remediations and the second in a study of the efficacy of cognitive behavioral therapy for depression in individuals with TBI. Additional opportunities will include neuropsychological assessment, and learning of evidenced based reviews. Clinical experiences will be augmented to round out prior clinical experiences. If additional funding from NIDRR for an Advanced Rehabilitation Research Training, fellows will be involved in a broader array of research opportunities within NIDRR Model Systems of Care for TBI and for SCI. Three to four hours of research and clinical didactics per week are provided; individual and group supervision for research and clinical interventions provided on a weekly basis. Involvement in teaching activities within an APA internship program is optional. Pending federal grant funding, six credits in master's level courses in epidemiology and biostatistics may be offered.

Program Description

 LAST YEAR'S INFORMATION - CONTACT PROGRAM FOR CURRENT INFORMATION The basis of the CMHS postdoctoral training program is an apprenticeship model which promotes the independent practice of the fellow to competently perform in positions in which advanced level psychologists function. To this end, the fellowship is tailor-made to accomplish the following three objectives: 1) Add to competencies already established by rounding out training (i.e., increasing one's depth and breadth of brief treatment) and develop one's level of teaching and supervising to a level commiserate with that of an already established psychologist; 2) Begin to understand administrative functions in which psychologists engage (fellows will gain an inside perspective on the ensuing struggles among academic, clinical, and financial goals competing in the current health care market); and 3) Develop a specialized area of expertise. The latter is done in conjunction with a selected mentor and may include a clinical specialty, outreach area, or scholarly endeavor. This may result in a paper submitted for publication, presentation at a relevant conference, or in establishing a program. Possibilities are numerous and are determined in conjunction with one's mentor. In addition, fellows conduct individual, couples and group psychotherapy, receive 4 hours of supervision, and attend selected case-oriented seminars.

Program Description

We are committed to the development of psychologist leaders who have sufficient breadth and depth of clinical knowledge to assume full responsibility for patient care, teaching, and administration of clinical programs in a variety of health care settings. Depending on the track selected and the professional goals of the applicant, trainees may also gain experience in clinical research in a variety of areas. We offer advanced education and training in five substantive areas of clinical psychology: Adult Ambulatory Psychology, Child and Adolescent Psychology, Geropsychology, Primary Care Family Psychology and the Treatment of Severe Mental Disorders. Each of these fellowship tracks features training in more than one clinical setting and capitalizes on the rich clinical, research and educational resources of the Department of Psychiatry. Program Description

Cincinnati Children's Hospital Medical Center is one of the largest children's hospitals in the country with a reputation for excellence in clinical care, teaching, and research. Fellowships are available on a one- and two-year training cycle across several sub-specialties and offer a combination of training opportunities across research and clinical care. An apprenticeship model focused on active mentoring, career development, professional role identity, and development of skills in clinical research and care that ensures success as a scientist-practitioner, is a hallmark of the training program. Postdoctoral training focus areas include: 1) Developmental Disorders, 2) Neuropsychology, 3) Pediatric Psychology, 4) Adolescence, 5) Biobehavioral Assessment and Treatment, 6) Risk and Prevention. Training is specific to each focus area but is expected to take place in clinical care (not less than 25%), research, teaching, administration, professional development, and community activities. Each program is developed within a focus area such that the fellow will be eligible for licensure at the end of the fellowship. For all areas applicants must have a doctoral degree from an APA approved program, completed an APA approved internship, and defended their dissertation prior to beginning the fellowship. Some of the fellowship positions are supported by an NIH Postdoctoral Training Grant in Child Behavior and Nutrition.

Program Description

The VHA National Center for Organization Development (NCOD) offers a two-year postdoctoral fellowship in Organization Consulting and Development. The Center serves VHA facilities and offices nationwide. The Center's practice is based on an action research model, and its services include executive coaching, leadership development and assessment, team building, strategic planning, large and small group facilitation, work redesign, survey design and analysis, and psychoeducation interventions. The postdoctoral training program offers trainees the opportunity to "learn by doing", and they are involved in all aspects of the Center's work. All trainees participate in weekly didactic seminars based on readings from psychology and business sources. The supervision model affords trainees the opportunity to learn from several senior psychologists and practitioners. The Center's staff provides rich, intensive feedback to trainees on an ongoing basis. Trainees are expected to have a strong organizational and clinical background and to display a high level of professionalism in all aspects of their work. The ability to work effectively as a member of a fast-paced, high performing team is essential. Trainees must be willing to travel frequently (at least two weeks per month) and to work on evening and early morning shifts when needed. Trainees will accrue the clinical hours necessary for licensure during their tenure in the program, and candidates are expected to attain licensure by the end of the two-year training program. Candidates from Ph.D. and Psy.D. programs in clinical and counseling psychology are encouraged to apply. Candidates must have completed all requirements for their doctorate, including defense of a dissertation, prior to the start of the postdoc in September, 2006.

Program Description

This one- or two-year Fellowship in the Department of Psychology at The Children's Hospital of Philadelphia is designed for individuals who have completed all doctoral degree requirements and who aspire to academic careers and leadership positions in pediatric medical settings or university departments supporting Ph.D. training programs. Diverse pediatric populations, including infants, preschoolers, school age, and adolescent cohorts presenting with developmental disorders, behavior problems, and/or chronic illness/disability receive family-centered services within an interdisciplinary context. Opportunities exist to acquire or refine skills pertaining to Clinical-Child Pediatric Psychology, Pediatric Neuropsychology, Early Childhood and ADHD/Community Schools Psychology. Training occurs in both in-and outpatient clinical settings. Training and supervision is provided in vivo, in office, and during small and large group rounds. Video-mediated training facilities are available. Research opportunities are abundant. We offer the opportunity for fellows to be involved in federally funded research programs in psychosocial interventions within pediatric oncology, community-based ADHD intervention, violence prevention in urban schools, and pain intervention with adolescents with sickle cell disease. Other available research initiatives include developing parenting skills in an urban group of mothers, and adherence to treatment for chronic pediatric diseases. Didactic seminars, conferences, and rounds are frequent and address multiple topics and methodologies. Fellows have direct access to all faculty and staff and work closely with one or two mentors who ensure programmatic integrity and continuity. Fellows receive instrumental support when searching for career-enhancing positions.

Program Description

Fellows complete two six-month rotations. On the NBP rotation, fellows conduct comprehensive geriatric neuropsychological assessments. In addition, fellows co-facilitate a memory skills training group with a predoctoral intern, co-facilitate a monthly caregiver support group, and provide consultation at the Southwest Veterans Center. On the GRECC rotation, fellows work with the home based primary care team to provide individual/couples psychotherapy, caregiver stress interventions, and cognitive screening in patient's homes. Fellows on this rotation also conduct brief neuropsychological evaluations in an outpatient geriatric specialty clinic (GEM clinic). Fellows must complete a research project and a program development project. Fellows also assist with supervision of predoctoral interns and are members of the Clinical Training Committee. Fellows are active members of interdisciplinary teams and attend weekly didactic seminars. Fellows receive at least two hours of individual supervision per week and have the opportunity to work with at least four different supervisors.

Program Description

The purpose of the fellowship is to provide a training experience which ensures the development of competency in a specific area of clinical psychology including: Adult Clinical, Child Clinical, Behavioral Medicine, and Clinical Neuropsychology. The fellowships vary across settings such that in one instance research goals can be primary and clinical goals secondary while in another, clinical goals can be primary and research goals secondary. All fellowships have a minimum of 20% research time. The exact nature of training (e.g., didactic experiences, percentage of direct patient care, exposure to ongoing faculty research, direct research involvement of the Fellow) is decided on an individual basis by the Fellow and his/her primary faculty mentor. The clinical experiences vary greatly depending on patient populations and hospital settings. Training objectives are achieved through an apprenticeship model where the Fellow works closely with a faculty member in the provision of clinical services and/or in conducting research. The faculty member serves as primary supervisor and role model, and the close supervisory relationship permits the Fellow to develop clinical and/or research skills as well as role identity. In most fellowships, there are typically at least 2 other supervisors directly involved with the Fellow. A monthly seminar series is offered from the various hospitals. A second weekly seminar series is the "track specific" seminar. This seminar covers more intensive and specific clinical and research topics within each of the 4 areas of specialization. Number and type of fellowships vary from year-to-year and most are 2 years in duration. NIH FELLOWSHIPS ALSO AVAILABLE: NIMH Research Training in Child Mental Health; NIAAA Research Training in Alcohol Intervention/Treatment; NIDA Research Training in Substance Abuse Intervention Outcome Treatment; NIA Research Training in Dementia Research; NIMH Training in Treatment Research.

Program Description

A postdoctoral position is offered in the area of developmental disabilities. The position is clinically oriented with intensive supervision provided with the opportunity for research. In addition to direct patient contact, fellows will be involved in providing supervision, program development, and didactic learning experiences. Upon completion of the postdoctoral year, fellows should have the skills to establish a program in their area of specialty. The primary purpose of the position in developmental disabilities is to provide in-depth training for future work in prevention, early identification, and treatment of individuals with developmental disabilities. Depending on funding, a fellowship is offered in Sex Offender Treatment and Evaluation with a focus on adolescent sex offenders and children with sexual behavior problems. Those interested in this opportunity should contact the program to determine if it will be offered next year.

Program Description

This post-doctoral psychology program (2 positions) exists within an interdisciplinary training program and provides more intensive supervised training in clinical psychology with an emphasis in substance abuse. In this program, postdoctoral psychology fellows address the problem of chemical dependency among veterans as members of interdisciplinary teams. The psychology fellow combines psychological assessment and individual and group psychotherapy both to conceptualize the psychosocial needs of the substance-abusing veteran and to facilitate the veterans' development of adaptive coping strategies as alternatives to continued substance abuse. These goals are achieved by performing assessments as needed and as requested by the treatment team, conducting individual psychotherapy, co-leading psychoeducational and process-oriented group psychotherapy, attending continuing education programs on substance abuse, and participating actively in all interdisciplinary treatment team meetings. Other fellows (N = 3) in the fellowship program include members from the following disciplines: social worker, psychiatric nursing, occupational therapy, and chaplaincy. Opportunities exist to work with veterans diagnosed with HIV or AIDS, with families, with elderly veterans, with veterans with dual diagnoses, and with homeless veterans. A minimum of two hours per week of individual supervision with a licensed psychologist will be provided, and the fellow will be required to attend training seminars and case conferences throughout the year. Applicants must have received their doctoral degree in clinical or counseling psychology and must have completed a predoctoral internship, both of which must be accredited by the American Psychological Association.

Program Description

The postdoctoral program at UTMB provides specialty postdoctoral training in clinical health psychology. The positions are typically funded by NIH, HRSA, and NIDRR grants. Clinical settings are focused on health psychology and combine research and clinical service (approximately 50% each). The clinical component provides psychological services including evaluation, consultation, and treatment in a number of settings including pain management, oncology, and/or pediatric psychology. Research opportunities are dependent on funding. Teaching opportunities exist in the clinical psychiatry course and the sexual health and rehabilitation course. Inpatient work is also available on the geriatrics unit and a wide variety of surgical units focusing on pain management. Opportunities exist to work with children and adolescents at the Shriners' Burns Hospital. It is expected the postdoc will work in conjunction with on-going research projects and develop at least one project with the goal of publication or grant funding. UTMB has a scientist practitioner model of training and includes didactics and supervision of no less than 2 hours per week of individual face to face supervision. The program is designed to enhance research and clinical skills to prepare the trainee for a position in a medical or academic setting.

Program Description

This one-year postdoctoral training program is based in a private psychiatric hospital which is well-known for high quality patient care. The theoretical orientation is broadly psychodynamic, but with opportunities for cognitive-behavioral and other empirically-based approaches. The educational mission of Menninger is to train promising young clinicians in advanced concepts of psychotherapy and psychological testing. Postdoctoral fellows work as primary clinicians with a multidisciplinary team in a fully integrated, biopsychosocial model. The primary clinician is responsible for coordinating patient care, administering and interpreting psychological tests, providing individual and family therapy and group therapy to patients. Patient treatment episodes range from approximately 2 weeks to 4-5 months, affording an opportunity for intensive psychotherapeutic interventions and complex diagnostic work. Clinical supervision of 3-4 hours per week and didactic training round out the training experience. The program has recently moved from Topeka, Kansas to its new location in Houston, Texas where it is affiliated with the Baylor College of Medicine and Methodist Hospitals.

Program Description

The fellowship program consists of four fellows with either clinical or research areas of emphasis. The MIRECC fellowship has two fellows each of whom complete the fellowship in two years. The MIRECC emphasis is on mental health research with 75% time devoted to this within the VAMC complex and related facilities. 25% time is devoted to clinical service delivery and fellows may elect rotation from a wide variety of offerings. The preceptor for the MIRECC program is Nancy Jo Dunn, Ph.D. There are also two fellows with clinical emphasis, one in serious mental illness and the other in the treatment of Post Traumatic Stress and related disorders. These fellowship experiences last for one year. 75% of the fellowship is devoted to clinical service delivery skills and 25% to research/program evaluation. Thomas Anderson Ph.D. is the preceptor for the postdoctoral training in the treatment of serious mental illness and Su Bailey, Ph.D., serves as the preceptor for the clinical fellowship in treatment of stress related disorders.

Program Description

The Deer Oaks Mental Health Associates Postdoctoral Psychology Residency Program is designed to provide the highest quality advanced, training in clinical psychology in an outpatient setting. Our trainees are exposed to the full range of clinical services including individual, family, group therapy, couples therapy and geriatric/neuropsychological consultation and therapy. In addition, assessment and psychological testing with a full spectrum of clients ranging from infants and toddlers through the elderly offers the resident an opportunity to become quite competent in performing and interpreting a wide spectrum of psychological instruments. A special feature of the Residency Program is supervised experience working with the elderly residing in nursing homes as well as with children who have been abused and/or neglected and placed in foster care/adoption situations. There is a special emphasis on training with multicultural issues. Opportunities for continued employment/advancement after program completion. Training locations include San Antonio, Dallas, Ft. Worth, Bryan, Victoria, Houston, Corpus Christi, Brownsville, McAllen, Harlingen, Lubbock and Laredo Texas. Some travel is expected between sites, as needed. The organization is more than 12 years old and growing, with many opportunities for leadership in the areas of Employee Assistance Programs, Child Protective Services, and inpatient/nursing home psychological services. Contact Training Director or Human Resources for more details at 7272 Wurzbach Rd. Suite 601; San Antonio, TX 78240. APA ACCREDITATION IS ONLY FOR THE RIO GRANDE VALLEY OF SOUTH TEXAS CITIES OF HARLINGEN, MCALLEN AND BROWNSVILLE.

Program Description

We offer scientist practitioner training in applied clinical psychology in a medical school-affiliated VA medical center setting. Applicants can choose from three tracks: A two-year specialty track in Neuropsychology; or one-year specialty-focus-tracks in Health Psychology and Palliative Care Psychology. All tracks are accredited by APA, and the Neuropsychology Track is approved by APPCN. All residents are required to plan and conduct research projects, make professional presentations, and complete program evaluation projects, in addition to their clinical training experiences. Except for Neuropsychology, we usually select postdoctoral residents from our own internship class (from those in analogous special-focus tracks). To be selected, our interns must have collected all of their dissertation data, be progressing satisfactorily in their internship, and be approved by the special-focus track preceptor (all by December 1st of their internship year). These in-house selections are made by December 15th to allow time for open recruitment for any unfilled postdoctoral positions. Applicants should contact the Training Director after that date regarding any openings not filled by internal candidates.

Program Description

The United States Air Force offers one-year Postdoctoral Fellowship positions in Clinical Health Psychology (CHP) to qualified psychologists. The fellowship is a comprehensive program of supervised clinical training, teaching, supervision, and research in the specialty area of CHP. The positions are located in San Antonio, Texas, at Wilford Hall Medical Center (WHMC), the largest medical center in the United States Air Force. WHMC is a teaching hospital with over 50 medical specialty and allied health training programs. The fellowship is a comprehensive training experience in Clinical Health Psychology with a foundation of education, treatment and research. The education program consists of weekly workshops, professional seminars in CHP, Distinguished Visiting Professor Program, and attendance at one national psychology conference. The treatment programs include working as part of multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary teams including the following programs: Pain Management, Diabetes Education, TMD/Orofacial Pain Treatment, Bone Marrow Transplant Service, Tobacco Cessation, Cardiac Rehabilitation, and the Sleep Center. Fellows also gain experience as behavioral health consultants in Obstetrics. Fellows participate in active research protocols and are expected to produce professional presentations and papers for submission to peer-reviewed journals or presentation at a national conference. In recent years most fellows have been selected from those already on active duty as a licensed Air Force clinical psychologist with several years of professional experience. Highly qualified civilian applicants with similar credentials will be considered for acceptance into the fellowship training program. The program usually accepts applicants who are licensed psychologists with one or more years experience beyond the completion of their psychology internship program. The application due date is approximately 1 year prior to the start date of the fellowship program.

Program Description

ECC and EFI are dedicated to providing excellence in Christian psychological and counseling services. EFI, which residents in clinical psychology, interns, and practica students are affiliated with, provides therapeutic and educational services, counselor training, and world mission support. The integration of Biblical truth with empirically-based treatments provides a basis for treating individuals in the community and church to transform lives and reduce human suffering. Clinical staff draw from a number of theoretical orientations, such as cognitive-behavioral, family systems, and experiential as appropriate. Specialized training in Parent-Child Interaction Therapy (PCIT), Dialectical-Behavior Therapy (DBT) and marriage/family therapy are available. Residents are supervised by two licensed clinical psychologists, and also receive group supervision. In addition to being assigned to the main office in Norfolk, residents will provide therapeutic services in several other settings within the Hampton Roads area, such as Portsmouth and Chesapeake. In addition to the didactic seminars facilitated by clinical staff at ECC, residents have the opportunity to attend monthly colloquia at Regent University, which has an APA-accredited Psy.D. program, and to attend monthly seminars at a local psychiatric facility. Although it is not required, residents are encouraged to participate in research and to present on their findings in their area of specialty for the edification of the organization and for professional development purposes.

Program Description

Postdoctoral Fellowships are available in three areas of emphasis: substance abuse, PTSD, or neuropsychology of aging and dementia. 1) A fellowship in addictions treatment is offered through the Center of Excellence in Substance Abuse Treatment and Education (CESATE) - one of only two programs funded nationally by the Department of Veterans Affairs to offer a specialized clinical fellowship in the interdisciplinary approach to substance use disorders. The primary goal of this fellowship is to provide clinical training in the interdisciplinary assessment and treatment of substance abusers, intended to prepare fellows to assume clinical, academic and/or administrative positions in a variety of settings. 2) A fellowship in PTSD is available in the Mental Illness Research, Education and Clinical Center (MIRECC). This two-year fellowship has a research emphasis (75% research/25% clinical time). The primary goal of this training is to prepare fellows for independent investigator status in VA Medical Center and academic settings, with expertise in trauma disorders. 3) A fellowship in the neuropsychology of aging and dementia is offered in the Gerontology Research, Education and Clinical Center (GRECC). Equal opportunities are provided for clinical and research activities. Applicants for all positions must be US citizens, and must have completed a doctoral degree from an APA accredited graduate program and an APA accredited internship prior to the start of the fellowship. Inquiries should be directed to Steve McCutcheon, PhD, at the above address.

Program Description

The Post-Doctoral Fellowship in Pediatric Psychology at Madigan Army Medical Center is an intensive one to two year training program in the Department of Psychology with an emphasis upon child development and behavioral medicine. The program begins in September. One position is open to licensed military active-duty psychologists and one position is open to civilian applicants. The primary goal of the fellowship program is to provide advanced training in pediatric psychology. Major areas of focus are normal child development, developmental pediatrics, behavioral medicine interventions, dysmorphology, developmental and intellectual assessment, childhood psychopathology, pediatric consultation/liaison services, and military related adjustment. During the year the fellows provide services in various settings within the medical center. These areas include the developmental pediatric clinic, high-risk newborn follow-up clinic, pediatric ward, well baby clinic, dysmorphology clinic, and pediatric subspecialty clinics (e.g., pediatric neurology, pediatric oncology/hematology, pediatric endocrinology). Additionally, fellows are expected to develop one area of sub-specialization and produce a publishable professional project. The fellowship program is geared toward training fellows who can deliver high quality clinical services and who can train and supervise other pediatric psychologists. Finally, the fellow has the advantage of cross training in weekly clinics with pediatric fellows from the Developmental and Behavioral Pediatric Fellowship at Madigan Army Medical Center, as well as residents from the Pediatric Residency.

Program Description

The University of Washington (UW) Department of Psychiatry, Division of Public Behavioral Health and Justice Policy, and Western State Hospital (WSH), through the Washington Institute for Mental Illness Research and Training, conjointly sponsor a postdoctoral fellowship in forensic clinical psychology. The fellowship runs from September through August, full time. The goal of the fellowship is to produce clinical specialists in the practice and research of forensic clinical psychology who will lead the development of the field. The fellowship provides abundant opportunities for supervised practice and advanced training in the integration of science and practice. Some fellowship training activities (e.g., seminar and cross-training with law students) occur in tandem with our ACGME-accredited post-doctoral training program in forensic psychiatry and a forensic post-doctoral training program in juvenile forensic psychology and adolescent treatment offered by the University of Washington at the Child Study and Treatment Center(CSTC), adjacent to WSH. Work sites include WSH, CSTC, local correctional facilities, community, and private practice settings. Duties include forensic evaluations of defendants; assessment, treatment and consultation of mentally ill offenders and correctional inmates; supervised report writing and testimony; independent study and research. Eleven psychologists, several psychiatrists, and one neuropsychiatrist are available for supervision, training and consultation. Four to six hours of face-to-face clinical supervision are provided each week. A demanding nine-month, weekly forensic seminar series provides further didactic education. UW and WSH offer extensive collateral opportunities for education and training. The fellowship program also maintains an active, collegial relationship with the Seattle University School of Law. WSH has a long-standing and fully APA-approved pre-doctoral internship program.

Program Description

The Postdoctoral Psychology Fellowship offers one position in each of two specialties: Pediatric Psychology and Child/Adolescent Clinical Psychology. The Pediatric Psychology Fellow is trained in the assessment and treatment of the problems of children and adolescents with medical disorders. The Pediatric Fellow spends half of each week in supervised experience on the inpatient pediatric, pediatric intensive care and neonatal intensive care units and the other half in the outpatient Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Health. The Child/Adolescent Clinical Psychology Fellow is based in the outpatient Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Health and has a part-time rotation at a local inpatient unit for adolescents, once licensed. Both fellows receive training in the assessment and treatment of children and adolescents with a wide range of behavioral and emotional problems. Assessment procedures include psychological testing, behavioral questionnaires, diagnostic interviewing and collateral interviews. Interventions include individual therapy, parent guidance, family therapy and group therapy. Fellows receive approximately three hours of individual supervision per week, participate in a weekly postdoctoral seminar and are encouraged to attend other conferences within the medical complex. The faculty utilize a variety of therapeutic approaches but the prevailing approach is behavioral or cognitive-behavioral embedded in a developmental and systematic understanding of the child. The fellowship is one year with the option to apply for a second year. Fellows are encouraged to consider applying for a second year.

Program Description

The Psychological Residency Program at the University of Wyoming Counseling Center provides Residents the opportunity to deepen their clinical skills, and to move into new areas of practice including rural and primary care collaboration. The program takes a strong focus on professional identity development. Seen as entry level staff persons, Residents are valued and respected members of our counseling center team. The program includes providing individual, group, and couples counseling, while also receiving training in behavioral health collaboration through a rotation at the University Student Health Service. Residents have the opportunity to supervise a Master's level student. Residents also take responsibility for outreach and consultation functions of the center. Professional Topics seminars are aimed at helping the new professional develop a secure sense of professional identity. Our goal is to aid the Resident in his or her transition from student to professional with supportive supervision and quality training.
